Shuffle On N.I.P. Furore

By PAUL MOSS
 Times Staff

At the last minute Victoria city council has shuffled its spending proposals for the Neighborhood Improvement Program in James Bay and Victoria West.

The change, initiated at an unobserved meeting Tuesday and confirmed at council's regular meeting Thursday, appears to have:

Angeled community leaders and aroused their suspicions concerning council intentions and motives:

Generated public doubts as to the prospects for building community centres (the residents' stated top priorities) in the two areas:

— And created at least a temporary rift between City Hall and the communities, in a program that had been hailed as a kind of model for co-operative effort toward the improvement of Victoria's older neighborhoods.

The pebble — or rather, boulder — was tossed into the N.I.P. pool Tuesday by aldermen: the ripples were spreading all through Wednesday with irate phone calls from community spokesmen to officials and aldermen and still making waves at the council meeting on Thursday.

One council member, Ald.

Percy Frampton, accused his colleagues of destroying the good faith built up over months of painstaking planning with the community.

Another, Ald. Bill Tindall, charged community representatives with "dirty pool" in inputting ulterior motives to the city's eleventh-hour move.

And Mayor Peter Pollen, in strongly denying any "grand conspiracy" to fiddle with priorities, appealed to all concerned to avoid "skepticism and internecine warfare."

What touched off the storm was a decision by council in its caucus session late Tuesday, after city planning department officials and reporters had left.

The earlier decision had approved with minimal debate the list of spending proposals — already thrashed out with full community involvement — for implementing the $2 million program in James Bay and Vic West.

Under that schedule the allocations for "community recreational and social facilities" were left unchanged, with the bulk of the money destined for construction of the community centres themselves.

But later in the meeting, when only aldermen and city manager Jim Bramley were

Saskatoon Hijacking

SASKATOON (CP) — A CP Air flight from Montreal to Vancouver was hijacked today by a knife-wielding man described as an Arab.

The aircraft made an unscheduled landing at Saskatoon where the hijacker was taken into custody and a stewardess sent to hospital. He entered the cockpit during a scheduled stop in Edmonton and forced the plane to turn back east.

Passenger Walter Kondrayko, of Edmonton, a passenger on the plane, telephoned radio station CHED in Edmonton after the landing to report that it was all over.

He said a stewardess — not immediately identified — was taken to hospital with cuts to her throat.

John Ashauer, a body shop worker in North Battleford, Sask., west of Saskatoon, reported to the radio station earlier that he had intercepted a conversation on his short-wave radio between the jet and the airport tower at Saskatoon, 90 miles away.

A Winnipeg passenger, Meagan Gordon, said the man indicated that he wanted to go to Cyprus but the pilot convinced him that he had to land in Saskatoon for fuel.

B.C. Kills First

EDMONTON (CP) — Many people retire in British Columbia but a study by the University of Alberta's population research laboratory shows people in Saskatchewan live longer than anywhere else in the four western provinces.

The study, released Thursday, shows B.C. has the youngest life expectancy rate, making it the most hazardous place to live in the West, in terms of dying young.

It showed people in Saskatchewan lived much longer, followed by Alberta and Manitoba ranking third.

The report also includes statistics for Ontario where the life span is 69.3 years for men and 76.2 years for women.

"It is important to note that even though Ontario is the richest province in Canada, it is not the richest with respect to life expectancy."

The report indicates life expectancy levels are not due only to chance.

It cites climate as a probable major factor while not collecting detailed data on the causes of death. "A dry and cold locality is a more healthy place as compared with a humid and wet place."

The life expectancy levels for the four provinces are broken down by sex as follows:

Saskatchewan: Males 70.8 years; females 77.2 years.

Alberta: Males 70.6 years; females 76.9 years.

Manitoba: males 70.7 years; females 76.7 years.

Bigheads Are Out

OTTAWA (CP) — If the Canadian Forces can find 75,000 small-headed recruits it could save taxpayers some $102,000.

The auditor-general's report tells of the defence department ordering 100,000 winter fur caps at a cost of $32,000. After 75,000 had been accepted it was discovered they were a full two sizes too small. (Further details on the report: Page 12.)

"It seems these hats have ear flaps that can be turned inside when not required. But the internal measurements were made with the flaps down."

So when the caps arrived, with flaps in place, they wouldn't fit.

B.C. Rail Lays Off 500 Staff

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Railway spokesman said Thursday that 500 office employees will be laid off today as a result of a strike by shopcraft workers.

The development came as forest industry and union officials in the northern interior called for government intervention in the strike to prevent extensive closures and lay-offs in the next two weeks.

The industry, suffering from poor world lumber markets, has been unable to move its products or receive supplies because of the strike.

A Chevron Standard spokesman said the company is in the middle of reassessing the economic future of all its activities.

Macdonald told reporters that he and Finance Minister John Turner had met with oil company representatives prior to the Nov. 18 budget. At that meeting, he said, the companies had agreed that if Ottawa rolled back some of its taxes, they would "turn their attention to the province of Alberta to see if they could get the royalties reduced."

The president of Pacific Petroleum Ltd. said management has been notified that exploration and drilling activities will be placed "in a hold position" while new exploration will be deferred.

In effect, the energy minister accused the companies of renegeing on Ottawa's

Oil Firms 'Blackmail'

OTTAWA — Five oil companies Thursday announced plans to drastically curtail exploration expenditures in reaction to the federal budget. The move drew immediate charges of "blackmail" from Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

"It wasn't a person of such charitable temperament," the energy minister said. "I would look upon this as a kind of threat or blackmail against the government of Canada in relation to the budget."

The companies are: Home Oil, Pan Canadian, Dome Petroleum, Pacific Petroleum and Chevron Standard. Gulf Oil earlier announced it was cutting back its exploration and development budget for 1975.

Home Oil announced that it was reducing its 1975 exploration and development budget by 50 per cent, from $34 million to $17 million, in response to the new tax measures outlined in the federal budget. Home last year spent $38 million on exploration.

The president of Pacific Petroleum Ltd. said management has been notified that exploration and drilling activities will be placed "in a hold position" while new exploration will be deferred.

Convicts' car rammed by police cruiser after high-speed chase through Nanaimo.

Gunmen Lose Chase

A running gun battle in Nanaimo Thursday night ended three convicts' short-lived bid for freedom.

"They've stopped . . . they've stopped," an excited voice announced over the police band radio at 7:55 p.m. after a police cruiser rammed into the back of the convicts' stolen car forced into a private driveway to avoid a roadblock.

"We've got three in custody," the voice reported moments later.

The three — Robert Moses, 23, Claire Wilson, 19, and Rick Dale Beeman, 23 — submitted without struggle.

Their capture ended a nine-hour drama which culminated in a hair-raising, high speed chase through 12 miles of suburban Nanaimo during which they exchanged more than 25 rounds of gunfire with police pursuing at speeds up to 90 mph.

No one was injured but three police cars were damaged. The prisoners' car was punctured with bullet holes in the back and right side. The back window had been shattered by the convicts and police found 16 spent shotgun shells on the floor of the car.

A police spokesman in Nanaimo said today the three will appear in provincial court either this afternoon or Monday to face a variety of charges including attempted murder and escaping custody.

The drama began shortly after 11 a.m. at Cassidy airport when the three attacked two sheriff's officers in a charter plane which was taking the prisoners back to the B.C. Penitentiary. They had appeared in Nanaimo court earlier in the day — two as witnesses, one as accused, in a drug case.

One deputy sheriff, Jerry Ockie, 26, was stabbed in the neck; the other, 37-year-old Gib Peirry, a former RCMP Staff Sgt. was stabbed several times and savagely beaten as well.

Ford to Visit China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will visit the People's Republic of China in 1975, the United States and China announced jointly today at the conclusion of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's visit to Peking.

He said the board alone is liable for any blame in the matter because it previously had no policy on such expenses.

Asked to detail the matter, he declined because "absolutely nothing but harm could come to the hospital out of such a release."

He said the CHA convention is rarely held in western Canada and attendance of a "relatively large" delegation from the hospital was highly desirable.

"It expenses were abnormal," he said, "such would be due also to the coincidence that the board at that time was endeavoring to employ a medical director of high repute and capability and certain abnormal expenses were experienced to this end."

Asked if this meant there were "entertainment" expenses, Saunders said: "Yes."

The man sought as medical director, from eastern Canada, declined the job.

Saunders agreed the controversial convention bill involved the spending of public money. Asked why it wasn't debated at an open board meeting, he said:

"It's a thing which can and does occur in every public body and never see the light of day and subsequently is controlled."

"I think the board as a whole has been superbly conscientious they are spending public funds but errors in judgment will occur. Failure to lay down policy will occur."

"But the board strives very

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Ivan Taylor, who was given a second heart in a historic operation this week, is out of bed, chatting with nurses and sipping cold beer, South African newspapers reported today.

Nixon Unable To Travel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The court-appointed committee of doctors that examined former president Richard Nixon earlier this week told U.S. District Judge John Sirica today that Nixon is not able to travel to Washington to testify in the Watergate cover-up trial.

The doctors also said that Nixon is not well enough to give a deposition but that "we would estimate that he should be able to give a deposition in his home by Jan. 6."

who left and the visit was a nostalgic one for him since he last saw his homeland in 1949 before the Communist liberation.

At a banquet Wednesday night, Barrett told his hosts he was "sorry about the circumstances that brought the Chinese to Canada but not sorry they are there."

The Chinese, he said, "are hard-working citizens and have helped build the province to what it is today."

The delegation spent the night in what was once a grand hotel in imperial days but now its crumbling balconies, stained walls and faded revolutionary posters tell a story of decay.

In the morning the group visited a factory where the young workers, dressed only in light clothing without any safety gear, build small machinery and spare parts starting from scratch with old steel and coking coal.

Equipment at the plant, which they also built themselves, is elementary and antiquated by Canadian standards but the Chinese there were proud the factory is totally self-sufficient.

At a small reservoir and hydro-electric project in an area of communities near the coast of the South China Sea, the group were shown how an extensive water control system built during the Great Leap Forward in 1959.

present, the matter was brought up again and it was decided to lop 30 per cent from each of the cash allotments for community recreational facilities, and instead place those sums into N.I.P. land acquisition funds for housing.

The formal resolution embodying the last-minute changes was duly passed by the full council meeting Thursday, with only Frampton voting against it. As required by the N.I.P. ground rules, that now goes to the provincial and federal governments as the city's official submission — the tap which will turn on the flow of funds.

But before the resolution was passed Frampton tried, unsuccessfully, to move an amendment that would have restored the deleted allocations to each of the community centre items.

He said the spending priorities had been changed since they were outlined at a public hearing Nov. 20, without the communities themselves being consulted.

"To my mind this is really losing faith with the neighbourhoods," he added.

Ald. Mike Young said it was "unfortunate" the proposals had to be processed so quickly, leaving council a scant three weeks to study them in their final form.

But the fact remained that these were only submissions in "general terms" and lacking specific, detailed estimates of capital and operating expenditure, he said, adding: "I certainly don't think council as a whole is prepared to establish the amounts of money that are going to be spent in any particular area with any degree of certainty at all."

Young said Frampton himself had repeatedly assured council the N.I.P. scheme is so flexible "you can practically bend it in two" yet now the alderman professed concern implying that was not the case.

He insisted the submission agreed was not "inviolate" in predetermining precise expenditure, but "totally flexible."

the weather

Skies are mainly cloudy on the coast with precipitation in the form of periods of rain reported mainly on the north coast and over northern Vancouver Island. This weather is the result of a weather system which was south of the Queen Charlotte Islands and extends northeastward over northern B.C. This morning, this weather system will continue moving gradually southeastward passing over the remainder of the province today and tonight. General improvement is forecast on Saturday for most of B.C. except the north coast. Another storm will bring more weather to northern coastal regions later on Saturday with rain expected to reach the Queen Charlotte Islands late in the day.

Anti-IRA Bill: Speedy Action

LONDON (Reuters) — Both houses of the British Parliament today passed emergency legislation to outlaw the Irish Republican Army (IRA) and counter guerrilla bombers in Britain.

The legislation, which received royal assent almost immediately after Parliament approved it, was passed by the House of Commons after a marathon all-night session, and the House of Lords then approved it within minutes.

GUERRILLA SISTERS ON HUNGER STRIKE

LONDON (AP) — Dolours and Marion Price, convicted bombers and members of the Irish Republican Army, began a hunger strike in Brixton prison today hours after Parliament enacted emergency measures to deal with terrorism.

Dolours, 23, and Marion, 20, ended a 205-day hunger strike in June after they had received assurances they would be allowed to serve the bulk of their life sentences in a prison in their Northern Ireland homeland provided there was no worsening in the security situation.

A government announcement said the two women began refusing food because of Home Secretary Roy Jenkins' announcement in the House of Commons on Thursday that there was "no question of an early move" to Northern Ireland for the sisters.

Stumpage Levy Cut

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Interior forest operators will be charged only minimum stumpage on trees cut and independent coastal operators will have their levies cut in half, Resources Minister Bob Williams announced here Thursday night.

The new reduced rates will be retroactive to Nov. 1 and continue to March 31, 1975.

In the interior, the minimum rate for stumpage is $1.10 a hundred cubic feet of wood harvested. Recently B.C. Forest Service officials had said that about 90 per cent of all interior operators were already paying the $1.10 minimum.

For coastal independent firms, the stumpage rate would be reduced to 10 per cent of log sale values in the Vancouver Forest District and eight per cent of the sale values for the northern coast area.

Williams said that on the average, this change, would reduce stumpage to about half the present rates for coastal independents.

On the coast, stumpage collections are based on sales prices through the Vancouver log market; in the interior, the forest service uses and end product appraisal which includes the price of lumber and residual wood chips sold to pulp mills.

Williams said there also will be a temporary suspension of penalty charges for usable wood left in the ground after logging except in cases of flagrant waste. He said that the waste would continue to be measured "to make sure that the annual allowable cut is not exceeded in any area."

The minister also said that in recent weeks the government has increased cost allowances used to calculate the stumpage payable.

"These measures can not entirely compensate for the decline in lumber markets but they will help to ensure that when the world market improves the forest industry will be in a healthy position to take full advantage of every opportunity," he said.

The forest industry has been hit by a severe slump in the lumber market and the latest figures reported by the Council of Forest Industries of B.C. showed that 15,258 workers were jobless.

Williams said that the temporary minimum stumpage charges would ensure that none of the increase in residual wood chip prices would be absorbed in stumpage rates.

The minister has been highly critical of the pulp companies for not paying higher prices for chips and recently introduced to the legislature the Timber Products Stabilization Act giving the government power to set chip prices. It was passed last week.

Most interior pulp companies responded by increasing chip prices by 40 per cent.

The bill's passage was one of the fastest in modern British legislative history. It followed the killing of 20 people in bomb attacks in Birmingham last week.

Scotland Yard warned all security forces to be on the alert for more bombings which it expects may greet passage of the legislation into law.

Five northern Irishmen charged with murder in the Birmingham bombings that killed 20 have been beaten up in prison, apparently by fellow prisoners, British newspapers said today.

The five appeared in magistrate's court Thursday with black eyes, cuts and bruises.

With another man they are charged with the murder of Jane Davies, 17, one of the victims of the blast in the tavern in the town bar.

Home Secretary Roy Jenkins had to overcome an unexpected number of amendments as he steered the bill through its final reading so it could become law later today.

VOTE BLOCKED

Most of the proposed changes were to put more teeth into the bill. The Speaker of the House refused to allow a vote on a proposal by a group of Conservatives to bring back to death penalty for urban guerrilla acts resulting in death; but the government later announced a separate debate on the death penalty will be permitted.

Jenkins told the House that banning the IRA would not in itself reduce bombing outrages but the new powers to be given the police would be decisive in preventing further acts of terrorism.

Under the legislation, police will be able to expel suspected guerrillas and detain them for questioning for up to five days.

Jenkins tempered proposals for even tougher measures by saying there would be nothing more gratifying to the IRA than to see Britain's traditional freedom undermined in countering the bombers.

Mea Culpa: Butz on Papal Slur

NEW YORK Terence Cardinal Cooke has accused U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz (right) of "ethnically-mockery and vulgar religious prejudice" for a joking reference Butz made in a mock Italian accent on Pope Paul VI's views of feeding the poor.

Butz said today he never intended "to impinge the motives or the integrity of any religious group, ethnic group, or religious leader."

Spokesmen for Butz said he had not used the words as his own but had merely been telling newsmen about a joke, attributed to an unnamed Italian woman, which circulated through the World Food Conference earlier this month in Rome.

Violence 'Provoked'

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian director of the American Indian Movement charged today that the department of Indian affairs is trying to provoke a violent confrontation over the occupation of the department's Calgary office by 25 militant Alberni Indians.

"We are trying to set up negotiating sessions but all the DIA wants to do is put up pretty little things to try to stop us."

Burnstick said the "petty" issues included destruction of furniture in the office and the statement that normal services for Indians are being held up by the occupation.

The demonstrators broke up chairs and tables Thursday night to use the furniture legs as clubs.

Symphony Squabbles Should Cease

The Victoria Symphony Society is going through one of its periodic convulsions. In the last month three directors have resigned from its board, two of them protesting that they disapprove of the way the society's affairs are run.

Ideally, directors of symphony orchestras should be able to drift through life in the grand manner, listening to beautiful music and the reassuring clatter of the box office cash register in the background. Instead they find themselves involved in time-consuming committee work and other tedious chores which they discharge with varying degrees of competence and enthusiasm. As in most amateur groups, the main burden falls on a faithful few. Whether or not their efforts are deserving, they get precious little thanks.

And over it all there hangs the spectre of financial disaster. Symphony financial statements are often hard to follow, but Victoria's budget for the 1974-75 season projected a deficit of $33,000. The audited balance sheet for the 1973-74 season showed an accumulated deficit of $45,185. If those figures are borne out — and there have been indications that both have been revised downward — the symphony will be in the red to the tune of $78,000 by the end of this season.

Ironically the orchestra under Laszlo Gati has reached a level of artistic excellence that is the admiration of visiting artists. It is playing to packed houses, but ticket sales don't go anywhere near covering the orchestra's expenses. The gap has to be made up by donations from the public and grants from the various levels of government. The governments have not been munificent. This year the Victoria Symphony will get $40,000 from the Canada Council, an unknown amount from the B.C. Cultural Fund (which provided $35,000 last year) and $21,732 from the Greater Victoria municipalities. (More irony: the municipalities take most of their grant back in the form of rent for the Royal Theatre, which they bought as "a home for the symphony.")

The chances are that the vast majority of people in Victoria are quite indifferent to the fate of the symphony. They shouldn't be, if they have any pride in their city. Victoria is blessed above most places in having a vigorous musical life on which the symphony has an immeasurable impact. The public should rally behind it wholeheartedly and try to understand and help it solve its problems.

Meanwhile, it would be nice to see the depleted board and the musical director put aside their petty squabbles, stop their dithering, and take some firm steps to ensure the continued vitality of this fine orchestra.

Halfway Measures on Drugs

Mahatma Gandhi once said something like: There go our people, we, their leaders, must follow them. That statement just about sums up the federal position on soft drugs, although the Trudeau administration appears to be only dimly aware of the principle which gentle Gandhi followed throughout his life. More than two years ago the Le Dain Commission in a majority recommendation said penalties for simple possession of marijuana and hashish should be abolished. After two years of inertia, during which thousands of Canadians received jail sentences for simple possession, the government has finally introduced a Senate bill to abolish jail sentences for simple possession of the two hallucinogens.

Under the proposed legislation an initial possession conviction would bring a maximum fine of $500. Nonpayment would result in a three-month prison sentence. Current federal law levies maximum fine of $1,000 or six months in jail, or both, on first conviction. But the severity of penalties often depends upon the jurisdiction. In Victoria first time marijuana or hashish offenders usually face a $250 fine. On the prairies the same offence often brings a jail term. So far this year, 870 Canadians have been jailed for possession of the two-related drugs.

If passed, the bill will at least make justice more equitable across the land. But what of the hundreds of Canadians languishing in jail on first-time possession charges? Will the government extend an amnesty, "a royal prerogative of mercy", in Health Minister Marc Lalonde's words to these people? By reducing the penalty the government is in a sense admitting that former measures were too draconian. It does not help the imprisoned to know the government has changed its attitude.

With the naivete of the 1960s long past, few Canadians would suggest the legalization of marijuana and hashish. We have enough trouble with alcohol as it is, and, as more research on marijuana and hashish comes forth there is increasing concern about their long-term effects. Yet the fact remains that hundreds of thousands of Canadians are smoking marijuana every day. To hand out criminal records — something that is retained under the proposed bill — to teenagers or even adults who experiment with the drug is punitive and ruthless. Current harsh penalties in some parts of Canada have not discouraged users. And it should be noted the proposed legislation is a rich man's law. Those who can afford the $500 fine go free; those who can't go to jail as before.

In view of what was stated in the interim Le Dain commission report, it could be argued that the current bill is four years late. Nor is it just coincidental that the United States proposes similar legislative action on marijuana and hashish. How many individuals and families have suffered under the current laws while the government bit its collective nails? People should come before politics. But the government is as loath to admit this fact as the marijuana smoker is to admit that he might be damaging his nervous system.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Teachers

The recent letter in which the president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association applauded Mrs. Daily for the legislation regarding teachers' salary negotiations, which approves the use of the big stick to clout the people of the various school districts, is another example of the power the teachers' union in particular and the other unions in general have over the present government.

The president's claim, on behalf of the teachers, that Mrs. Daily's action was democracy at work is, in my opinion, not an example of the normally recognized interpretation of democracy. The basic interpretation of democracy is rule by the majority. The B.C. School Trustees Association, representing all the voters in the school districts, wanted provincial salary bargaining, the teachers' union, representing a much smaller number won, because the government interested in their behalf.

It is noted that the teachers in Districts 61, 62, and 63 emphasized via the radio, that they are not bargaining on a provincial, regional or zonal basis. However, during the weekend of Nov. 24, teachers from the three districts joined forces as a zonal group. It is assumed the meeting was for the purpose of establishing a united front against their individual districts with respect to wage and fringe benefit demands.

The cost of education is a tremendous burden on the taxpayer. The school district 61 budget has increased from $20 million to $40 million in approximately five years and Camosun College has increased from $1 million per year to almost $1 million per month in a similar period. I suggest, subject to maintaining a high standard in the academic fundamentals, it is essential that the B.C. School Trustees Association be given every encouragement in their efforts to decrease the rapid rate of escalation in educational costs.

The current practices of the B.C.

Teachers' Federation, plus the white paper recently presented to the government, which I understand includes recommendations to decrease the authority of the school trustees (the representatives of the people) in favor of the teachers, plus the most apparent militant attitude of their provincial representatives, plus the recent illegal withdrawal of teacher services in some districts, certainly does not encourage a harmonious teacher-community relationship.

I do very much if the current activities of the teachers' representatives enhances the respect of any individual associated with teaching. It is certainly not in keeping with my image of most teachers of earlier years, whose eyes, in most instances, reflected children, not dollars, and they were recognized as highly respected members of the community. — E.D. Robbins, Victoria.

Holes and Trenches

The safest job in Victoria is that of digging holes and trenches in our streets.

Precisely at rush hour legions of men, with their attendant vehicles and digging devices, marshal themselves in the centre of our thoroughfares.

Their objective is achieved! Traffic snarls and comes to a grinding halt. Supervisors of the digging operations smile contentedly, it's going to be another great day!

Signs proclaim to distraught drivers that there is a "single lane ahead." If there is, it is purely coincidental, more likely there is not! Or — if there is, it's not the indicated one.

Pedestrians plod through an obstacle course reminiscent of commando training schools. If this claim is doubted the writer invites all and sundry to start the "course" at the intersection of Yates and Government. Here, our lusty diggers have left the centre of the street and are actually digging up the sidewalk! The pedestrian has to leave the sidewalk, step onto the pavement, walk with his back to the traffic around a huge truck until the safety (?) of the sidewalk is attained.

He waits dutifully for the walk sign (which may or may not appear because the power is disconnected). The pedestrian walks across Government Street. As he nears the sheet of wet plywood, laid across yet another trench, a grinning young man with protective ear devices, awaits his cue. At precisely the same time as the faltering foot alights on the wet sheet, he loosens a machine-gun statio burst from his pneumatic drill. His supervisor smiles benignly at the result. "It is a great day!"

The scene is repeated all over our fair city. Not only are numerous streets being assaulted at any given time, but the same streets are being assaulted at numerous times.

What it comes down to, is this:

Either something has been lost and they're trying to find it, or Victoria is well and truly going in the hole. — Holeier Than Thou.

Matches, Not Cloth

I noted in your paper of Nov. 21, some very big Ludlow slugs saying you had made tests of the material of the nightgown, which burned up the child in Burnaby.

Now to my mind the nightgown didn't burn the child, it was the matches she was playing with that did the job and I don't see anywhere where anyone subjected the mother or the grandmother to any fests as to why they let the child play with matches. Let's put the blame where it belongs. Why should a lot of business people be put to all the bother of taking the material off their shelves when all you have to do is tell all mothers and grandmothers don't let your children or grandchildren play with matches, they might get burned. — W.H. Inglis, 182 Cadillac Avenue.

Budget Makes 'Lunatic Western Separatists' Sound Plausible

By JAMES GRAY

Because of the mild concessions now offered, one independent executive said his company approach will probably now be about 20 per cent "go, go!" and about 80 per cent "hold everything."

Already a great deal of oil exploration capital has been marked for diversion to the United States where a Canadian company can make more money out of 800 barrels of daily production than it can from 4,000 barrels in Canada. And new oil is no harder to find down there than it is in Alberta.

So far more than 30 Canadian drilling rigs have moved to the U.S. since the May budget, along with most of their skilled crews. There are still others to follow. So the outlook for any important increase in exploration or oil industry employment in Alberta is far from rosy. Turner or no Turner.

However, just the reverse is true over the long haul for the western provinces economically, what with oil, natural gas, potash, coal and food production. And all this, after Turner, will set more westerners to humming the separatist refrain: "We get along without you very well." The mathematical calculations they dredge up to prove it are very hard to refute in this rags to riches area.

The immediate political picture is too cloudy to interpret clearly at the moment, for Lougheed has a number of options open. One is a provincial election to rally public support for an all-out war on Ottawa. That is more likely after some preliminary steps are taken.

One can be amendment of all oil leases to provide for payments of royalties in oil instead of money. The producers under this system would deliver them to the recently established Alberta Energy Company. That would prevent Ottawa from taxing royalties. Another possibility, although remote, would be to order the producers to shut in Alberta's royalty share of oil and gas production.

Instead of amending the leases by order-in-council the government might call a meeting of the legislature and pass amending legislation, thus forcing the Socreds to stand up and be counted. An election would then follow.

PETER LOUGHEED

... restrained anger

Whatever action Alberta takes must be in face of the possibility of Ottawa setting aside the changes and voiding them. If that happened, in the face of its refusal to disallow Bill 22 of the Quebec legislature, more fuel would be added to separatist fires.

A distinct immediate possibility would

No one with a sense of dynasty or half an eye on the history books would chicken out in a constitutional confrontation such as the one now shaping up. And while it is shaping up, ordinary Albertans are bound to be having second thoughts about the worth of a federal system that confiscates their birthright, as they see it.

From the Times of November 29, 1914

VANCOUVER — From all corners of the district and city Liberals of the number of about 1,000 rallied in the Labor Temple hall in a great reunion. It was the greatest and most enthusiastic gathering of its kind ever held in the city. It indicated the growing strength of the party, increasing faith in the principles of Liberalism for the common good and harmony and enthusiasm in the party ranks. Last but not least it pre-figured victory for the party in this province at the next provincial election. H.C. Brewster, provincial Liberal leader, told the gathering the party is showing the spirit "that is uniting all fighters of the party to clean up all the dirt that exists today" and praised the independence of mind shown by members. "Liberals don't lead well with strings on them and they are hard to control sometimes, believing as they do in the freedom of speech and thought."

World's Goal Switches From Growth to Survival

The soaring prices of oil and other world commodities, the shortage of food, the heightened tension between the developed and developing countries, the new disease of stagflation — are all these manifestations of a transient crisis or something far deeper and more enduring: the approaching end of the world's explosive population and economic growth?

That is emerging as the basic issue beneath the day-to-day politics and economics of all nations. The world's cardinal objective appears to be shifting from growth to survival.

The Columbia University

economist Emile Benoit has put the problem dramatically: "Our earth, we now begin to realize, does not and cannot supply us with an unlimited amount of usable energy, raw materials, foodstuffs, safe dumping grounds for our waste products — or even standing room. It is not an inexhaustible cornucopia. It is much more like an interplanetary vehicle where resources must be carefully conserved, waste products must be minimized and recycled, and where the number of passengers must be carefully limited to those that can be taken aboard without over crowding . . . We have, in effect, a revolution of rising expectation, superimposed on population explosion, in a world of fixed dimensions and limited productive capacity."

Economists and technologists disagree on how long it will take before the earth's minerals, fossil fuels and other nonrenewable resources will give out. Some, like Prof. William Nordhaus of Yale University, find the notion of our running out of mineral supplies "ridiculous." The entire planet is composed of minerals, "and man can hardly mine himself out."

But Benoit calls such statements "unfortunate hyperbole." He calculates that the consumption of major minerals is about 2.7 billion tons a year and that at even a 3 per cent annual growth rate, the consumption of minerals in a single year 1,000 years from now would exceed the entire weight of the earth. In actuality, given the estimated tractable concentrations, the continuation of annual growth at a 3 per cent rate would exhaust the earth's usable minerals in two centuries.

The earth's finite resources; even if used in combination with virtually infinite nuclear and solar power, set limits on exponential population and industrial growth, as does the earth's fragile atmosphere. The critical question is what the probable time limits are.

The astonishing development in the 1970's shows how close those limits have suddenly come to seem. The need to slow industrial growth to sustainable rates is affecting thinking in all fields: the world's supply of energy, its financial stability and its peace appear to be bound together.

Does managing growth whether for a decade or for much longer — mean slower growth or even negative growth? And is the determined effort of governments to ignore physical limits, which currently are worsened by the oil producing countries' deliberate restriction of supply, the underlying cause of world inflation?

Trying to achieve full employment simply by increasing total money demand without changing the underlying industrial structure of national economies, which are geared to the lavish use of increasingly scarce fuels, minerals and other resources, would only aggravate the problem of inflation and declining real standards of living and intensify both national and international economic disorders.

Future economic policy must focus on ending waste, conserving nonrenewable resources and developing the renewable resources of the earth, safeguarding the atmosphere and oceans and land, shifting habits of consumption from industrial goods to human services, curbing population growth or even reducing the world's population, and using technology and science — which got us into this crisis — to get us out of it.

Amnesty Traps Await Dodgers

By BARRY LYNN
The Progressive

When President Ford's so-called clemency plan for Vietnam war resisters and deserters was announced in September, it was presented in the complex format of two executive orders: a proclamation and a "fact sheet" giving practical details of the plan to some extent. It was roughly as comprehensible as the first draft of a high-school debate case. Much in the program was deliberately vague, designed to be fleshed out by the agencies involved.

Amnesty groups that now have all the guidelines (except for the yet undetermined Clemency Board procedures) can say with assurance that serious "traps" exist in the Ford program. It does not take a conspiratorial mind-set to locate them.

Dangerous to Phone

Widespread publicity has been given to telephone numbers resisters can call to get information on the program and the status of their case. However, it has become dangerous even to phone to get a report of your standing. Defence Secretary James Schlesinger has already admitted that information (such as address and telephone number) given to the operators by "deserters" will be turned over to the FBI to use in their investigations if the caller does not turn himself in by the termination date of the Ford program, January 31, 1975.

Persons who call the Army to find out if they are eligible for the program have been sent letters informing them that the call constituted a request to participate in the program. They are given about ten days to report to Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indiana for processing. Some deserters turned themselves in before considering their options, out of fear that failure to do so would constitute a charge of "disobeying a direct order" which would be added to their record. The Pentagon denies it was trying to frighten persons into surrendering.

The Defence Department has also abused its information machinery. For several days Defence admitted to a "loophole" (which they insisted was supposed to be in the program all along) for deserters. An unconvicted violator of Article 85 (AWOL), 86

(desertion), or 87 (missing movement) of the Uniform Code of Military Justice could return to the branch of the service he left. He would then be processed out with an undesirable discharge (UD) after pledging to perform a term of alternative service. But if he chose not to be awarded the special Ford-created "clemency discharge" by fulfilling his pledge, he could merely not do the alternative service and go home.

Unrepentant'

Within a short time the "loophole" started to thread out. First, according to a non-public memo, the UD which would be given would have in the "Remarks" column of the "discharge form (DD214)" a comment that this discharge was issued under the Presidential proclamation of September 16 with a given number of months of alternative service required. Therefore, an employer who took the time to get the DD 214 would know that the man was not only a deserter, but an "unrepentant" one. Next came the rumors and final official pronouncement that persons who took "advantage" of the "loophole" could be prosecuted under Article 83 of the UCMJ which prohibits giving false information in order to obtain a discharge. Nevertheless, through all this, the original allegedly deliberate "loophole" got much more publicity than the realities that have kept it from becoming a wide hole. Considering the changes in official pronouncements, the charge of entrapment on the part of the Defence Department looms large indeed.

Defence personnel also appeared to enjoy their use of the "numbers game" in dealing with the media. One morning's news brought words and pictures of a plane-load of one hundred men arriving for "clemency." By October 1, 525 men had been processed. It appeared that men were literally climbing out of the woodwork to turn themselves in. As the facts are now known, however, only about seventy of those men had actually turned themselves in; the other hundreds were persons who had been jailed in military prisons before the Ford plan was even announced. There was not the voluntary ground-swell of acceptance which Defence and, tacitly the media, had first implied.

Tactics Suspect

The Justice Department's tactics are equally suspect. At their official clemency telephone number are a few secretaries shifted there from other bureaucratic positions. They do nothing but tell the caller whether his name is on an "indictment list." If he thinks he might be under investigation for possible indictment, or might have committed a draft-related offence, but his name is not on the list, he is instructed to call the U.S. Attorney closest to where he may have committed the "offence." Bruce Fein of the Justice Department reports that he "cannot absolutely guarantee" that a U.S. Attorney will desist from beginning an investigation of person who calls if he has not already started one. It is considerably safer, then, not to call.

Master List

A further problem arises in regard to the indictment list itself. The list ought to be of public record under the Freedom of Information Act since all unsealed indictments for a district are of record in the Federal District courthouse. Legally, then, a master list compiled by the government should be similarly available. However, repeated attempts by counseling groups to obtain the list have met with failure. Excuses include the fact that the list might not be complete and that it does, in fact, include some names of persons who have not been indicted but are merely under investigation (which means that persons who call might be misled into assuming there is already an indictment when there may only be an investigation).

It appears that the Justice operation as a whole is a good way to short circuit the whole judicial system: The Department has not had a particularly successful conviction rate for draft law violators over the past decade. More than 90 per cent of all draft evasion cases in that period were dismissed before trial. The official, yet unsubstantiated, reason for most dismissals is that the person involved agreed to face induction. However, John Schulz of the Selective Service Law Reporter notes that the dismissal rate for fiscal 1973 was just as high even though persons did not any longer have the option of joining the armed forces to avoid prosecution.

Beyond all these considerations, the Justice Department has virtually admitted that much of the "clemency" proposal is, legally, of questionable constitutionality. The admission lies in the statement all "clemency" applicants must sign which waives their constitutional protection against double jeopardy, and protections of due process, a speedy trial, and consideration of the statute of limitations for the alleged offence.

Hence a convicted Quaker pacifist objector could present himself to the Board to be granted "clemency" by the President if the Board so recommended. Whatever "clemency" means here is unclear, and there is no guarantee that it extends to expungement of the felony record. Nevertheless, this may be predicated on up to two years of alternative service, a genuine case of double jeopardy. No one is yet aware of the Board's procedural guidelines.

Throughout our involvement in Indochina the men who refused to fight or to give in to the system have been harassed and penalized. The new Ford program does little to accept, and nothing to exonerate, their acts of conscience. To suggest that this program ends the work for amnesty is a fiction.

down to the question of how much to ask for, a point the instructions concede is "a very important question." Stress to the prospect that it is not the gross amount of the gift which matters but the net amount. Stress that a $100 gift only costs $25 after the income tax credit. A $25 gift costs only $6.25.

The canvasser will do better if he mentions a specific figure, he is told. "Our experience shows that many more gifts are received for higher amounts when a specific dollar amount is mentioned by you." The canvasser should start with $100 (net cost $25) and if the reaction is "impossible," he is then instructed to move to $50 or $40. But if the reaction to the $100 is favorable, "tempt the donor with the impact of a higher gift: perhaps $250 or $300."

Of course, some of the prospects might want to discuss issues and that is a bit of a problem. Issues aren't mentioned in the pitch "because we believe that the idea of strengthening the political process with regular broad-based contributions is what will prompt gifts, more than specific issues."

After the canvasser has stressed the aspect of improving the political process and after he is sure that the prospect understands that idea, he is allowed to discuss issues.

The Liberals Get Their Mark

By HUGH WINSOR
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA — When the Liberal Party of Canada decided to popularize its previous elite and secretive fund-raising activity, it took up the task with the fervor of the heathens converted. As part of the campaign to encourage "proud annual giving," the Liberal Party has produced an instruction pamphlet on Being a Liberal Party Volunteer Fundraiser which has all the enthusiasm and many of the tricks that used to be contained in pitch sheets given to new encyclopedia salesmen.

First, you have to warn up the "mark" before you let him know that you want his money. The brochure offers a sample telephone conversation for starters: beginning with an admition to be relaxed, confident, slow-speaking and friendly.

"I'm calling you because you may want to play a part in improving the political process . . . If so, you should know about an important change in the federal income tax law which you may want to take advantage of before the end of the year."

There's no mention of money yet. And when the subject of money is eventually introduced, it is done gently with the canvasser encouraged to sit up to the prospective donor.

The Unrealistic Canadians

By SMITH HEMPSTONE
Washington Star-News

OTTAWA — Canadians, like most people, want both to have their cake and eat it:

• They want to pursue an independent foreign policy and yet enjoy a special relationship with the United States.

• They want foreign capital to develop their vast natural resources and create industry but resent American domination of their economy.

• They want free access for their goods into the American market but as much protection as possible for their own goods and products.

• They want to play a prominent role in NATO and the world, while maintaining their armed forces at a level considerably lower than Holland's.

There is nothing either sinister or unnatural about all this. But it is a bit unrealistic.

Many of the attitudes of the Canadian people and not a few of the policies of their government are conditioned by the proximity of Canada to a nation 10 times as populous and infinitely more powerful than their country is: the United States of America.

The Austrians have a similar problem with Germany. But they at least have memories of their own imperial past and a rich cultural tradition to comfort them in their Lilliputian lowness.

The Mexicans share the Canadian difficulty of proximity to the same powerful neighbor. But they at least enjoy an Indian-Spanish-Catholic heritage that establishes their iden-

The surtax was removed in December of the same year but Canadians have neither forgotten nor forgiven.

New warmth was not generated by President Nixon's somewhat undiplomatic description of Prime Minister Trudeau (as revealed in the Watergate tapes) as an "asshole," nor has the current hassle over Canadian beef and pork imports to the United States created an era of good feeling.

In a sense, given the realities of geography, comparative GNP's and demography — the last reality is heightened by the fact that 90 percent of Canada's population lives within 200 miles of the U.S. border, it is not unnatural that there should be frictions between two peoples distinct yet so similar.

Although it is seldom if ever stated, one senses that what really gripes Canadians (as distinct from the Canadian government) about the United States is not so much that America is hostile to Canada — which it is not — but that it ignores Canada — which it does.

When Mr. Trudeau journeys to Washington Dec. 5 for his first meeting with Mr. Ford, these and other matters will be on his mind. They are not really concerns that can be satisfied, although it might be helpful if the president kept in mind both Canadian sensitivity and the fact that Canadian-American trade — worth $40 billion annually — is the greatest trading partnership the world has ever known.

Agonizing Zoning Stalled

Victoria city council found itself faced with a seemingly insoluble zoning problem on Thursday, and decided the only action to take was no action at all — until the matter has gone back to the Advisory Planning Commission for further study.

Basically, the problem was how to reconcile the social need of housing with the local transition of a former residential area to industrial use.

The area in question is the wedge-shaped district between Douglas and Burnside East, immediately south of the Victoria-Saanich border.

Some council members argued that its transition from a residential neighborhood to an "industrial" zone is already well-established and that the process should rationally continue, but Mayor Peter Pollen said the changes were being made through "rezoning by default."

He said there has been no comprehensive attempt to control the area's future under a community plan, and no opportunity for citizen input. Meanwhile, the "horrendous" process of change was causing acute problems to the remaining residents of the area.

It was Ald. Mike Young who found a temporary way out by moving the matter to referred back to the APC. "I feel we are on a self-destruct course," he said ruefully.

Subject of all the agonizing was a large old house at 61 Alpha, which would be demolished and replaced by a warehouse if the rezoning were allowed.

Seven people — three couples and single girl — live there now, paying $250 a month rent. The three married women are all expecting babies.

One of them, Victoria Flawith, told council at the public hearing they thought the house was rented on a month-to-month basis because it would be condemned some day, but they were surprised "three days ago" to learn of the rezoning and demolition plans.

She spoke both of the joys and the problems of living there: of the "beautiful" backyard with its trees and birds, and its fertile soil for growing vegetables, but also of the traffic and constant noise.

The noise starts at 6 a.m., she said. "I lie there and I think ... oh for the country, some place where it's quiet."

Flawith said the tenants fear they would have to move about Christmas time if the rezoning went through. "We certainly don't want to move at Christmas because, wow, it's a really heavy thing."

Economy Stands Still But Spending Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — There was no growth in the economy during the third quarter of the year, following a flat second quarter, Statistics Canada reported today.

The report shows that individuals and businesses are continuing to increase spending, indicating confidence in the economy, and increases in spending tend to spur production.

However, price increases account for a major portion of the increased spending.

The GNP in dollar terms went up by $3.2 billion during the July-September period to a total of $142.7 billion, but all of that increase was in higher prices.

There was a one per cent increase in real terms — in consumer spending during

There was a one per cent increase in real terms — discounting inflation — in consumer spending during the third period. However, there was a decline of spending on durable goods — such things as household appliances — and an increase of spending in the non-durable category which includes food and clothing.

Investment by businesses in machinery and equipment was higher in the third quarter after declining in the second.

Government spending made an "important contribution" to demand for goods produced by the economy. There was a 1.2-per-cent real increase in the third quarter in this area.

The report covers both spending categories and income categories and on the income side there was a significant shift from the pattern of the second quarter. Labor income recorded its largest quarterly percentage increase since early 1951, following a decline in the second quarter.

The deterioration in the trade balance, as imports grew faster than exports resulted in a trade deficit of almost $700 million during the third quarter, which was about double the second quarter deficit.

Labor income was up by 5.1 per cent during the third quarter and a major contributor was a cost-of-living allowance paid federal civil servants. Other factors included wage gains in manufacturing and mining and fewer strikes compared with previous quarters.

Corporation profits grew by 3.3 per cent.

There was a 10-per-cent drop in farm income, due in part to labor disputes involving grain handlers.

reserve lands, about 24,000 acres in B.C., be cut off from the reserves.

Flawith said the surrender of those lands was opposed by Indians at the time and is still being opposed.

The UBCIC invited all 55 MLAs to attend the two-day conference, but only two showed up — Hugh Curtis (SC-Saanich) and The Islands) and Frank Richter (SC-Boundary Similkameen).

Indians Prepare To Seek Claims

A 10-member "action" committee to pressure the federal and provincial governments on Indian land claims questions was formed Thursday by the Union of B.C. Indian chiefs.

The committee's first move was to write to Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Barrett asking for a freeze on part of the lands affected.

Philip Paul, land claims director for the union, said if the Indians do not get adequate response from the governments they will consider "direct action," which some native leaders say will include the blocking of all B.C. highways.

The formation of the committee was announced at the end of a two-day conference at The Empress, attended by about 110 native leaders from across the province.

The Indians are attempting to settle a "cut-off lands" dispute which has been brewing for more than 50 years.

A joint federal-provincial commission which operated between 1912 and 1916, recommended that certain Indian Announcing: The Ski Canada Lottery with over $25,000 worth of prizes!

What you could win

Be a winner and support a winner — the Western Division of the Canadian Ski Association. You could win a 1974 Datsun 260Z or one of five P.W.A. Ski Holidays for two. Or one of the 4,350 on-the-spot "Instant Prizes" — yours the minute you buy your ticket — which include $25.00 gift certificates from Woodward's, $10.00 gift certificates from Cal-Van Auto Supply, $5.00 gift certificates from Keg N Cleaver Restaurants, old-time Rock n Roll records from Polydor, Kentucky Fried Chicken dinners, and legendary White Spot hamburgers. That's a lot of prizes for the price of a ticket — just $1.00.

Where

You can buy your C.S.A. Lottery tickets at Woodward's Ski Shop and the Keg N Cleaver Restaurant, in Victoria.

When

Lottery tickets go on sale November 15th and remain on sale until December 15th. The big draw takes place at the top of Grouse Mountain on December 21st.

Why hold a lottery?

The C.S.A. Lottery is being held to help defray the cost of training of the B.C. members of the National Ski Team. One-quarter of the National team members are from B.C., and that means their share of the team's costs amounts to approximately $40,000.

Every member of the B.C. team hopes to be a winner this year. That's why the Canadian Ski Association is sponsoring a fund-raising lottery — because they want their supporters to be winners too —

In fact, every ticket holder's chances are one in twenty-five to win! But remember — you can't win if you don't enter!

John Frank Sanucci the man charged for a second time with manslaughter in the death of a Vancouver artist had trial date set for March 12 in Victoria provincial court Thursday on a charge of possessing marijuana.

Sanucci, 29, was arrested Nov. 16 in a drug raid at 320 Beach Drive. Legal Aid lawyer Brian Mackenzie, speaking on behalf of Sanucci's Vancouver lawyer Stuart Rush, did not object to the delay and pro-cutor James McLellan pointed out that Sanucci is in custody "on another matter."

He was ordered deported last week because he overstayed his three-month time in 1972 and gave wrong information to officials, but his deportation was postponed as a result of court action in Vancouver.

The manslaughter charge was laid by Mrs. Jones' father, Harvey McNeil of Vancouver, after an evidence hearing before provincial court judge Les Bewley in Vancouver.

A manslaughter charge was laid last July but was stayed by the Crown Oct. 30 on the grounds that there was insufficient evidence. A coroner's jury later blamed Sanucci for the death and recommended the stay be lifted.

The attorney-general's department rejected the recommendation and McNeil's charge has been set.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A man described as a "sort of Jekyll and Hyde" was sentenced to three months in jail Thursday for setting fire to his own house this summer.

Arnold Gordon Mason, 42, of 820 Craigflower, was found guilty Nov. 12 on an RCMP charge of arson. He was sentenced in Victoria provincial court by Judge William Ostler.

Evidence showed Mason was an excellent worker but had a history of trouble with alcohol, finances and personal affairs, and called him a "Jekyll and Hyde."

The judge said arson was a serious offence, but because Mason had waited until everyone was out of the house before using oil to start the blaze, he ordered a three-month jail term followed by 18 months probation.

A 26-year-old man who went for a free ride in a taxi Nov. 21 was fined $350 after he pleaded guilty to taking an automobile without the owner's consent.

Sean Michael Doyle Hennion, 20, of 1121 Norma Court, took the car, owned by Island Taxi, from a local hotel parking lot.

The driver had left the taxi unattended with the engine running.

Hennion was stopped by Saanich police shortly after on George near Admirals.

"You seem to be trying to abuse yourself as much as possible (by) using cannabis and liquor at the same time," Judge William Ostler told an 18-year-old.

Robin Charles Bennett, 26, of Prospect Lake, was fined $125 after pleading guilty to possessing the drug and to consuming liquor in a public place.

The court was told police approached Bennett Tuesday in a truck parked near Prospect Lake.

George Krekul, 82, of Princess, was found guilty earlier.

Krekul was involved in a minor traffic accident while in a car that had been reported stolen Oct. 22 from Vancouver Street.

Wayne Victor Sinclair, 27, of 1376 Esquimalt, was fined $350 and had his licence suspended; Hazen James Young, 53, of 25 Ober, was fined $350 and banned from driving for 50 days, and John Mervyn Pirie, 52, of no fixed address, was fined $50, put on probation for a year, and banned from driving for two years.

On Wednesday, an 18-year-old man was given a three-month jail term to be followed by a year's probation for possessing stolen property.

Tail-Twisting Feather-Pluckers

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Grattan O'Leary said Thursday that any attempts to diminish trade dependence on the United States would amount to "treason to Canada".

He also said suggestions that Canada join the European Economic Community are "dangerous heresy."

"Just as in the old days when we were twisting the tail of the British lion, we now are plucking the feathers of the American eagle," Senator O'Leary charged.

O'LEARY . . . 'treason'

The 85-year-old senator said he is not suggesting Canada should become a satellite of the U.S.

"We must stand on our own so far as we can within the world as it exists today."

But Canada should guard against antagonizing the U.S. while seeking new markets for Canadian goods.

"I believe that the future of this country is tied up inextricably with the United States," he said. "We must not endanger our relations with the United States."

He said Canada should not seek special trade arrangements with other countries for the sole purpose of decreasing its dependence on the U.S.

"Surely we should not be crossing continents and oceans to even insinuate to people that we are trying to get away from our dependence on the United States. We are dependent on the United States, not only for our markets . . . but for our defense."

MPs GET TAX TIPS

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has spent $3,000 to tell MPs and senators how the tax laws they approved will affect them, in the form of a 24-page booklet titled Tax on the Hill giving tips on unravelling the benefits, payments and tax liabilities they decided should go with their jobs.

Members of Parliament earn annual salaries of $18,000 and receive $8,000 tax-free expense allowances.

Senators receive an $18,000 salary and $4,000 in expense money.

Housing Grants Bill $31M

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government will spend $31 million next year on the proposed $500 grant for first-time home buyers, Urban Affairs Minister Barnes Danson estimated Thursday.

He expects about 62,000 home-buyers will benefit from the grant, he told a Commons Committee.

* The $500 grant, promised by the Liberals in the July 8 federal election campaign, is to go to purchasers of new homes.

Danson said he hopes the $500 grant combined with reduction in the federal sales tax on building materials will help spur housing construction.

William Teron, president of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., told the committee the corporation is preparing building standards for rural housing. City building standards were not appropriate for country regions.

The corporation was trying to design standards that fit rural needs better.

No Can Do—Trudeau On Candu

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau rejected a suggestion Thursday that Canada stop all foreign sales of Candu nuclear reactors.

John Rodriguez (NDP—Nickel Belt) said it is impossible to guarantee that countries buying the reactors will use them for peaceful purposes only.

There are no safeguards from being used to help manufacture nuclear explosives, he said.

Trudeau disagreed, saying that safeguards have been applied in the past and are being improved. To stop all sales would be wrong because other countries would be denied the benefits of Canada's advanced reactor technology.

Canada should at least turn down a proposed reactor sale to Argentina, Rodriguez added, because of the "highly volatile political situation in that South American country.

A Much Softer Bark ... Still a Snap

OTTAWA (CP) — The official watchdog over government spending issued its annual report Thursday without exposing major misadventures or waste, but Auditor-General J. J. Macdonell says he has "not gone soft" on the government.

In fact, Macdonell reports, he has shifted the agency's approach.

Instead of the combative, arms-length relationship with government departments of the past, the agency is intent on getting corrective results by co-operation and consultation.

Macdonell took over the office about 17 months ago from Maxwell Henderson, who built up a reputation for being abrasive in his approach to the job. This report, covering the financial year ended last March 31, is the first complete one under Macdonell.

Despite the co-operative new line, the report is sprinkled with examples of waste and mismanagement, including 100,000 military fur caps apparently made for midgets and a muddle in administration of the oil subsidy program.

Outlining the auditor-general's new approach, the report says he intends to work with government departments to have them correct any identified spending abuses. Their actions will be monitored closely and the auditor-general will come down hard if the departments do not mend their ways.

"If action is not taken, then my reports may become just as thunderous as Henderson's ever were," he said at a news conference.

The report says a new branch has been formed within the auditor-general's department, for special audits and inquiries on a government-wide basis. Its first two projects involve a sweeping study of government financial management and control, as well as an audit of payments and price restraint measures under the government's imported oil and petroleum products compensation program to cushion eastern consumers from higher prices for foreign crude used in Canada.

This year's report is condensed to 102 pages identifying 80 instances of questionable spending by government departments, from the 144-page report in 1972-73 that singled out 117 cases of wasteful spending.

Some of the examples from this year's report are almost comic. The national defence department, for example, spent $102,000 to buy more caps for its personnel because the first batch it ordered were measured with flaps down and turned out two sizes too small when the flaps were folded in.

Speaking at the news conference, Macdonell said the Treasury Board had acted to correct 55 of the 117 abuses singled out in the 1972-73 report.

ARMY ACCOUNTS A MESS

OTTAWA (CP) — Besides helping to keep the peace in Cyprus, it would appear that the Canadian contingent to the United Nations force also won some points as dinner hosts.

Between Nov. 25, 1972, and May 25, 1973, says the auditor-general's report, the 600-man Canadian contingent overspent its rations budget by about $60,000. The defence department was asked to investigate and an interim report said "other UN contingents, in some numbers, have been eating at Canadian messes when the opportunity presented itself because our meals are superior to theirs."

Shakedowns Feared

OTTAWA (CP) — The possibility that the proposed Canadian Business Corporation Act may open the door for shakedown artists was raised Thursday in the Commons Justice and Legal Affairs Committee.

Sinclair Stevens (PC-York-Simcoe) said sections proposing to give minority shareholders more legal rights to oppose decisions by majority shareholders may go too far.

Such a "relaxed position" would make it conducive for minority shareholders to trigger frivolous legal actions that could cost corporations unnecessary time and money.

Stevens said dubious elements might use these sections of the bill as a "form of blackmail" to tie-up companies with unreasonable litigation or possibly to shakedown a company.

Among broadened shareholder rights proposed are ones "granting shareholders the power to initiate bylaws and repeal existing ones, remove directors by ordinary resolution and amend a company's articles of incorporation."

Top Ten Salaries On MP Hit List

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie said Thursday that the salaries of top Crown corporation officials should be made public.

But he did not support a motion by Sinclair Stevens (PC-York-Simcoe) that the salaries of the top five officials of the proposed federal business development bank be contained in the corporation's annual financial report.

"I don't think I'd be satisfied with the top five," Gillespie said. "It would be more useful if they were to include the top 10 salaries."

He said he would encourage officials of the proposed corporation to include the top 10 salaries in its annual financial statements. But he would not commit himself to forcing public disclosure of the salaries.

Stevens said he proposed the motion because of his earlier unsuccessful attempts to learn the salaries of the top officials of the Industrial Development Bank, IDB.

Perrin Beatty (PC-Wellington-Grey-Dufferin-Waterloo) said he is not satisfied with Gillespie's undertaking.

Beatty repeated Conservative accusations that the majority Liberal government adopts a double standard in its dealings with corporations. Private companies are subject to more stringent regulations, they say.

"As a taxpayer, the expenditure of private funds doesn't concern me as much as the expenditure of public funds," he said.

Bill Kemppling (PC-Malton-Wentworth) said it is Gillespie's responsibility "to see that the operations of the bank are open and above board."

It wasn't enough for the minister to say he will encourage disclosure. "There has to be some statute that requires them to do so."

Joe Clark (PC-Rocky Mountain) asked that if Gillespie believes disclosure of salary would be a useful procedure, why does he decline to enact it?

LABOR WOE COSTS

OTTAWA (CP) — The amount of time lost due to strikes and lockouts in the first nine months of 1974 — 8.1 million man-days — has already exceeded the previous record of 7.8 million man-days during one year set in 1972, federal labor department statistics show. There were 955 strikes or lockouts in the first nine months of the year and 24 involved 5,000 or more workers, compared with 16 in 1973.

Lock Up Users: Simma On Pot

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Vancouver Liberal MP Simma Holt declared Thursday that she will vote against the government's new drug legislation if it isn't made tougher.

All users should be treated as pushers, she said.

She also said in an interview that she will ask for a free vote in the House of Commons on the issue unless she has her way so that other MPs can vote according to their consciences as well instead of having to stick to party lines.

She isn't "playing it alone" on the drug bill, the former newspaper reporter added.

"I'm on a team," she said, "but if they don't use me on the team I'm going along with my conscience."

Holt said she has written two books on drugs and related problems; knows the Vancouver "scene" intimately, and decided to run for election to the House of Commons because no one would listen to her when she was a reporter.

The MP agreed with the Leibovin Commission that alcohol is a dangerous drug, but stated that the effects of cannabis on human health are cumulative.

She said there have been reports of cellular damage and early cases of emphysema among cannabis-users.

She also reported that users she has talked to in Vancouver say they lose their memories quickly.

She also disputed the government's claim that the underworld is to blame for the problem in Vancouver.

She stated that "our respectable adults" who frequent such nightspots as the Cave are also taking drugs.

Holt said that she will fight for far stiffer penalties for drug users.

As for traffickers, she said, "as far as I'm concerned they can lock them up and throw away the key."

She also said she would not give lighter penalties for simple possession of cannabis either.

Holt said she is prepared to fight, in caucus, in the Commons committee studying the bill and even before the Senate committee which will study the legislation first to try to stop Parliament from lowering the penalties for possession of and trafficking in cannabis.

The bill, introduced in the Senate on Tuesday, would transfer cannabis — marijuana and hashish — from the Narcotic Control Act to the Food and Drugs Act which already deals with such substances as LSD and MDA.

The maximum penalties on summary conviction for simple possession would be reduced if first offence from a fine of $1,000 and six months imprisonment, to $500 and three months.

The bill also would cut in half the maximum $2,000 fine and one year in prison for subsequent conviction for simple possession. No provision would be made for indictment proceedings for possession which now carries a maximum seven-year prison term.

The maximum penalty of life imprisonment for trafficking would be done away with under the new legislation.

Instead, fines of up to $1,000 and imprisonment for up to 18 months would be provided for traffickers — under summary conviction or up to 10 years imprisonment under indictment proceedings.

Boilermakers Curb Pickets

VANCOUVER (CP) — International Brotherhood of Boilermakers representatives decided Thursday to limit picketing during the union's dispute with the Construction Labor Relations Association.

The decision reached by parties to the dispute was to be effective immediately. The agreement to restrict picketing came during a hearing of the British Columbia Labor Relations board, which had been called to rule on applications from five companies to impose the restrictions on picketing.

C. J. Connaghan, president of the CLRA said the move "corrects an intolerable situation involving the shut down of production facilities of companies not directly involved in the dispute."

George MacFarlane, a spokesman for the CLRA, said Thursday that "all our information indicates that the agreement to voluntarily restrict picketing was acted upon immediately."

Imperial Oil Limited, Canadian Forest Products Ltd., Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., Shell Canada Ltd., and Erco Industries in North Vancouver applied to have the Boilermaker's picketing restricted under Section 86 of the B.C. Labor Code. The section deals with pickets at locations where two or more employers are conducting business.

The section gives the board the power to "give direction respecting the picketing so as to reasonably restrict and confine the picketing to the employer whose employees are on strike."

The agreement, reached following a three-hour session of the BCLRB Thursday, made it unnecessary for the board to issue an order on picketing under the relevant section of the labor code.

Picketing by boilermakers had brought work to a halt at 10 plants in the province.

Pickets were hampering operations at most of the sites and several gas stations reported they were running low.

Members of the Boilermakers' Union, on strike since Nov. 18, began picketing sites in the B.C. Lower Mainland and at Kamloops on Monday.

Sites picketed by the Boilermakers were those at which work contracted by the 850-member CLRA was being carried out by the union members.

The Boilermakers are the only one of 18 construction unions which have not signed a new contract with the CLRA.

Under terms of the last contract which expired April 30, Boilermakers earned $3.50 an hour.

The union is seeking a 14-month agreement with an increase of $1.74 an hour compared with CLRA's offer of a package increase of $2.80 an hour in wages and fringe benefits during a two-year contract.

The contract sought by the Boilermakers is similar to one signed with three non-CLRA contractors from Toronto.

No figures on police casualties were released.

EDMONTON (CP) — The Social Credit party's free-enterprise philosophy ran headlong into some practical objections Thursday during an opening session of the Alberta Social Credit League's 40th annual convention.

In all, about 6,000 persons under the banners of the Catholic Anti-Corruption Movement tried unsuccessfully to break through police barricades at five different suburban churches Thursday morning.

About 20 demonstrators were injured in scuffles with police. One opposition assembly deputy, Dang Van Tiep, was beaten by police.

"If you don't want to be controlled, don't press the government for controls."

"I thought you were on our side with this," joked Francis Porter, retiring president of the Social Credit League and mayor of Drumbell, who had suggested limitations on campaign spending and guaranteed annual income.

The issue was left without a vote.

Purchases by West German interests are putting land out of the price range of my own son," said Russell Haglund of Camrose.

But Ted Hinman, MLA for Cardston, said "we would violate free enterprise if we limit the land that can be bought by foreigners."

Albert Ludwing, member for Calgary Mountain View, said that "everybody wants to control the other guy."

"If you don't want to be controlled, don't press the government for controls."

"I thought you were on our side with this," joked Francis Porter, retiring president of the Social Credit League and mayor of Drumbell, who had suggested limitations on campaign spending and guaranteed annual income.

The issue was left without a vote.

Excessive campaign spending was criticized, with one delegate saying it amounted to "buying a seat in the legislature."

But Robin Ayers of Calgary said spending limitations would be difficult to enforce, and Haglund said he opposed limitations because he supported free-enterprise.

Ray Speaker, MLA for Little Bow, said government studies showed that a guaranteed minimum income program would cost little more than existing welfare programs.

He said although the concept of a guaranteed income was "very socialist" as it was normally construed, a modified program would make better use of professional social workers who now spend their time handing out welfare cheques.

PRACTICAL OBJECTIONS SNAG SOCRED PHILOSOPHY

GROVEL REFUSED

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson says he refused an Arab guerrilla demand to express "groveling regret" for Britain's part in setting up the state of Israel. It was a condition for saving 20 British lives in last week's air hijacking.

Wilson told the story Thursday night at a dinner of the Labor-Friends of Israel. Among the guests was former Israeli prime minister Golda Meir, in London as a foreign visitor to the British Labor Party's annual convention.

Wilson told the dinner gathering that "20 British lives were at stake" when four Palestinians hijacked a British Airways VC-10 jet airliner to Tunis Nov. 21 with more than 40 persons aboard.

"To insure they were not killed, I was asked to agree to express the most grovelling regret for what was described Beautiful Gran Fury has inspired a new mid-size Fury. So now there's a Plymouth Fury exactly right for you.

What a choice! 24 beautiful ways to go Fury this year, and one of them is exactly the car you've been waiting for. With stretching room comfort inside. Styling that makes heads turn. And the kind of smooth roadability you've every right to expect from the car you drive.

If it's full-size luxury you're after, what a choice Gran Fury gives you! If a personal car of trimmer, more youthful lines is your style, there's a completely new mid-size Fury line-up waiting for you. Either way, you can count on a lot more car.

You get sure-fire electronic starts every time you turn the key. New insulation provides a ride that's even quieter than before.

And there's new fuel economy too, with an optional fuel pacer that actually tells you when you're using too much gas. And 1975 Fury and Gran Fury give you the important advantage of not having to search for hard-to-find unleaded gasolines. Even deluxe impact bumper guards come standard this year.

Size up Fury at your Plymouth Dealer's today.

NOW HERE'S "THE CLINCHER!"

New 12 month unlimited mileage warranty
It's going to take better care of the people who buy our cars.

For the first 12 months of use, any Chrysler Canada Ltd. dealer will fix without charge for parts and labour, any part of our 1975 passenger cars we supply (except tires, which are covered by the people who make them) which proves defective in normal use, regardless of mileage.

Special policies and programs include the replacement of selected items such as brake linings, shock absorbers, tail-pipes and mufflers should they wear out in normal use during the first twelve months. Participating dealers will supply a loaner free of charge.

The warranty period for police cars and taxis is twelve months or twelve thousand miles whichever occurs first.

Noisy Tenant Label Irks Student

A Camosun College student whose noisiest activity is her typewriter has taken exception to a landlord's charge that students—particularly those at UVic and Camosun—are the worst tenants.

"Just stories, without evidence," said Sheryl Walker. "In my two years here I have never had a party. The only noise I make is my typewriter."

Walker, who is from Calgary, said students began to get a bad name in the late 60s when "sit-ins" and free love came into vogue.

"People think students are all protesters and partiers," she said.

The comments came after a Times story quoting B. W. Morton, who manages three Victoria apartments including a 71-suite block in James Bay from which he evicted 19 tenants in the first month of the building's operation.

Morton said young people—often couples of the same sex—cause most of the trouble.

University of Victoria and Camosun College types are the worst. Especially if they come in from out of town . . . then it's one big, long party," he said.

However, student tenants are often quieter than those who work because the time and money they spend on school leaves less of both for entertainment, Walker said.

Another Camosun student, Mark Carter, said that college students in particular tend to be reliable tenants "because they're often going back to school after years out of the classroom."

Many have outgrown wild parties, he said.

Walker said many advertisements for apartments state, "No pets or students please," which she said was "ridiculous."

Victoria's housing shortage posed difficulties for hundreds of University of Victoria and Camosun College students at the start of the 1974 academic year.

Most students have now found accommodation of some kind however, said a UVic housing service spokesman.

Lottery Called Leisure Answer

HALIFAX (CP)—Canada's recreation ministers believe gambling and research may be the answer to many of the problems their departments face in the future leisure society.

The second national conference of provincial recreation ministers concluded Thursday with agreement to study creation of a national recreation lottery following completion of the 1976 Olympics and the establishment of a joint research centre in Nova Scotia.

The provinces also objected to the way federally-initiated LIP and OFY programs are awarded without consultation with recreation departments, and suggested a Canada Action Plan for co-operative development of recreation.

The lottery proposal, presented by Nova Scotia's recreation minister, Garnet Brown, would involve the sharing of a national recreation lottery fund following the completion of the Olympic Games. Each participating province would share revenues on the basis of the percentage of tickets sold in the province.

The proposal will be discussed with Ottawa, the respective provincial cabinets and a conference committee.

Rene Toupin, Manitoba's minister of tourism, recreation and cultural affairs, said following the four-day, closed-door conference that he had proposed the expansion of the existing four province western lottery to include the national recreation lottery. But other western ministers committee explore the possibility of retaining the existing Olympic lottery structure to provide the expertise and management capability.

Now is the time for the provincial departments of recreation to take the initiative in this matter to be in a good bargaining position for future

ARE WE COMMITTING SEXUAL SUICIDE?

What are the dangers of continued sexual freedom and equality? What will really happen if we follow the advice of today's "happy hookers, sensual psychologists, porno-sophers, gay liberationists, swinging priests and playboy philosophers"? In an article that's sure to provoke comment and controversy, author George Gilder argues that both men and women are the losers in today's so-called sexual revolution. 2,259 HOUSES AIDED

The department of housing has assisted in creation of 2,259 units of housing in B.C. during 1974, housing Minister Lorne Nicholson said Thursday.

"The impressive record" by his department in its first year of existence, he said, included 314 provincial family rental units, 163 provincial senior citizens' rental units, 1,350 non-profit senior citizens' units, 350 special care beds and 82 co-operative units.

Some 1,005 lots in residential subdivisions were also developed, along with 96 mobile home pads this year.

The department, he said, is assisting in financing of 14,823 housing units under construction or in the planning stages and another 2,616 residential lots and 931 spaces for mobile homes in the planning stages.

Perhaps She Really Knows Something . . .

LONDON — Margaret Thatcher, the opposition Conservative Party's spokeswoman on the economy, and tabled as a future party leader and perhaps prime minister, admits she hoards food.

Her stockpile of canned ham, tongue, fish, jars of fruit, jams, marmalade and coffee — enough to last four years — she said, was just a hedge against her busy life.

The admission, however, came at a time when British political leaders are denouncing housewives for clearing store shelves and causing temporary shortages of foodstuffs.

LONDON — A spokesman for the BBC has denied a statement by its drama chief that Richard Burton had been banned because of recent criticism of Sir Winston Churchill.

The actor portrays Churchill in a $300,000 production entitled 'A Walk With Destiny' which will be broadcast in Britain Sunday. Under the title 'The Gathering Storm' it will be shown on U.S. television (Ch. 5 at 8:30) tonight.

LONDON — Exiled King Constantine of Greece says he's ready to return to his homeland as a private citizen if Greek voters refuse to put him back on the throne. 'The great dream of my family and myself is to live in our homeland,' he told a news conference Thursday. 'I think that if nobody has lived in exile then they can't realize the frustration and bitterness. Greeks vote Dec. 8 on a referendum to restore the monarchy.

BERLIN — A court today sentenced West German female urban guerrilla leader Ulrike Meinhof to eight years imprisonment for attempted murder. Former lawyer Horst Mahler was sentenced to 14 years for complicity.

EDMONTON — Confession may be good for the soul but in William Danny Holden's case it eliminated the possibility he may be faced in the future with additional break and enter charges. Last week Holden was sentenced to two years less a day on one charge of break and enter.

Thursday he appeared again in provincial court where it took 15 minutes to reach another 43 break-and-enter charges that he confessed to which police had not linked to which police had not linked him with.

PEKIN, Ill. — A service station attendant opened the hood on Andrew Schott's car Thursday and told him why the auto wasn't running properly. A pipe bomb lay across the motor block. Police disarmed the live bomb.

BERKELEY — A political scientist says former president Richard Nixon proves the voter 'ought to be' as wary of politicians who come out of California as we are of speed freaks from communes." William Bicker said California politicians are not responsible to local supporters or party organizations.

"The California political syndrome is that in theory you can do anything. Nixon's behavior is the epitome of what could be expected from a man who had his political antecedents in California," Bicker added.

LOS ANGELES — Josephine Tyler spent part of her Thanksgiving Day at the Newton Street police station. She is not an inmate — just a good cook with a big heart. For the past 13 years, she has been cooking Thanksgiving dinner for the officers on duty. This year, 22 officers on the night shift were treated to a turkey dinner with all the trimmings.

UNFUNNY protest by comedian Dick Gregory took place Thursday, U.S. Thanksgiving Day, outside the White House when he paraded carrying a placard protesting his country's inaction in the face of world food shortages. The head on the turkey is a caricature of that of U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

60-CENT PENSION CUT PEANUTS OR PRINCIPLE

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Helene Altassere, 63, says retired persons need every penny they can get, so she took on the government over a 60-cent reduction in her pension cheque.

The fight was a matter of principle, she said.

But Ted Hitchcock, a director of the East Bay Municipal utilities district, said, "60 cents is peanuts."

Miss Altassere retired on Aug. 1, 1973, as a district secretary at a monthly pension of $534.40.

Three months later the cheque was reduced by 60 cents and $1.80 was withheld from it for "overpayment."

She went to small claims court and had the 60 cents restored.

But the district appealed the case to superior court.

District director A. C. Harrington said the 60 cents would be a continuing drain on the district's funds.

And he said, the small claims court decision could set a dangerous precedent.

But Miss Altassere called the reduction arbitrary, particularly because it did not occur to anyone else.

And she said, a person living on a fixed income needs to know exactly how much money is coming in each month.

The whole dispute came before Judge Spurgeon Avakian who this week awarded Miss Altassere $9.60 in damages and $6.40 in court costs and restored the 60 cents to her pension cheque.

FLQ to Get Their Day: Lemieux

Times News Services

Montreal — Those who imprisoned members of the Front de Libération du Québec may soon be called to account for their behavior, suspended lawyer Robert Lemieux warns.

"Maybe it will be our turn to send them to jail," he told a reporter. Lemieux recently began work as a service station attendant at the small community of Sept Iles.

Lemieux leaves his remote haunts 325 miles northeast of Quebec City today to face his third appeal before the Quebec Bar which imposed a 90-day suspension of his license last May.

Charges against him stem from an article he wrote — an attack against the legal system — which repeated arguments he had raised in appealing an eight-year prison term imposed on Jacques Rose for being an accessory after the fact in the October, 1970, kidnapping of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, who was slain while being held captive.

Of his appearance today, Lemieux said: "I'm not going there to scream insults. I'm going there to tell them they are grotesque characters."

Lemieux was released from jail Sept. 23 after serving four months of a six-month sentence for contempt of court.

He had originally been sentenced to 30 months for abusive outbursts during the Rose trial and for advising a witness not to testify. The sentence was reduced to six months by an appeal court.

The separatist lawyer began representing what he calls "political prisoners" a year after his admission to the Bar in 1966.

Roaming PM

Gets Word

PARIS (Reuter) — President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, whose reported nighttime absences have raised eyebrows in recent days, received a blunt reminder from the Gaullist party newsletter Thursday that the presidency is not a part-time job.

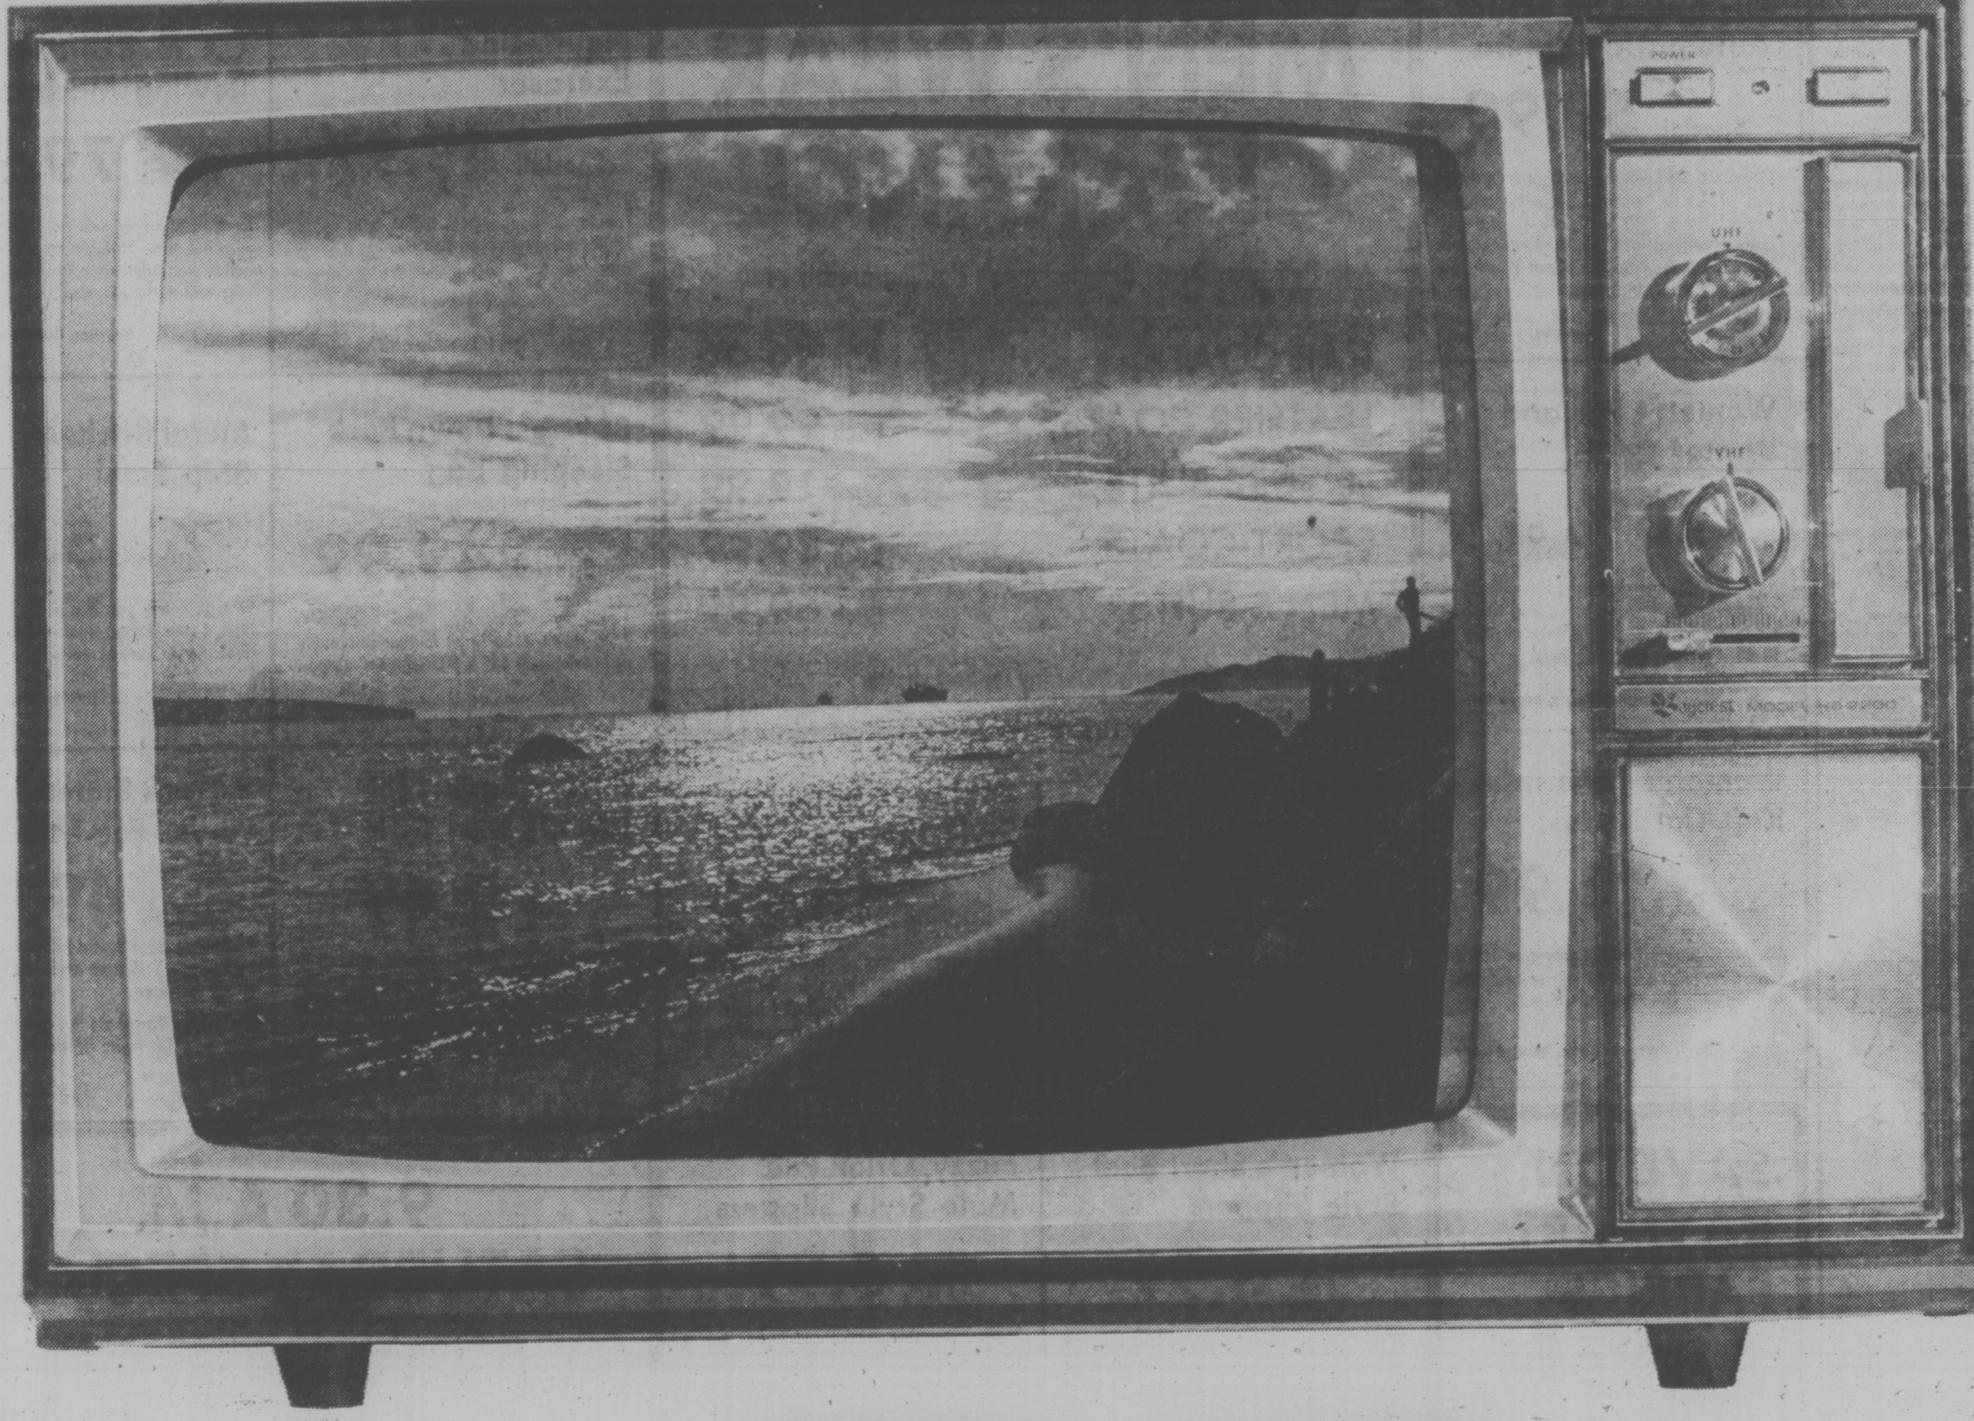

But French public opinion generally took a light-hearted attitude to published reports that his staff often does not know where to find him during the nocturnal hours.

TRICOLOR CARPET OUT FOR BOURASSA

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau paid an official visit to France in October, which marked a "normalization" in relations between Ottawa and Paris after the troubled Gaullist period touched off by the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle in 1967 when he declared: "Vive le Québec Libre (long live free Quebec)," during a visit to Canada which was abruptly cut short by then Prime Minister Lester Pearson.

Their Education Is Coming Alive

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A teacher's pet sometimes is a pet. And the children love it.

At Frank Hobbs school, Grade 3 teacher Mrs. Ruth Kirwan is proud of her pets — a trio of snakes.

She has a ball python, a constrictor and a Cuban rainbow boa.

She keeps them in large terrariums in the classroom.

At one time or another, she has had a monitor lizard, iguana, newts, toads and, of course, gerbils.

"First, they are terrific for boys, they just love them," she says.

"There is nothing to capture a child's imagination more than a unique pet."

Except in zoos, snakes at close quarters are unique.

She says most people have an unfounded fear of snakes. They don't carry germs and have beautiful patterns.

Mrs. Kirwan, who uses the pets in her animal studies course, says she starts off the school year by sitting with a snake in her lap.

Pretty soon the children want to do the same.

"It works wonders for little guys who are shy," she says.

The class also studies animals scientifically, such as warm-blooded and cold-blooded animals, which are which and why.

"In the 12 years I have taught there has never been a time when they are not uniquely interested. All the kids love all animals," she says.

At Northridge school, Grade 3 students have a live hive of bees.

"We have had a lot of interesting experiences," says principal Mrs. Janet Mort.

When the bees and their hive — which adjoins a window so they can come and go — moved into the school, all the bees left, circled the school to get their directions straight — and came back in.

With glass on both sides of the hive, the children can watch the larva hatching which is "really fascinating."

At one time, a marauding group of bees attacked the hive and it had to be restocked.

Mrs. Mort says the hive has been successful in diminishing children's natural fear of bees.

Mrs. Ruth Specht of Specht's Aquarium and Pet Shop at Hillside Shopping Centre thinks it is a good idea to have pets in schools.

"The children are taught to get along with animals right from the beginning. Some of the mothers and fathers come in and they don't know or like animals — some are afraid of them — snakes, rats, even the harmless iguana."

Gerbils and hamsters are the popular pets for children.

"We don't get too many strange requests — mostly for raccoons or skunks and boa constrictors which we don't carry anymore."

At Esquimalt high school, biology teacher Jack Nickolichuk has a room between two laboratories with mice, frogs, salamanders, alligator lizards and crayfish for a research project.

At the Grade 11 and 12 stage, animal studies are much more detailed than the elementary grades, where children are just beginning to learn about animals.

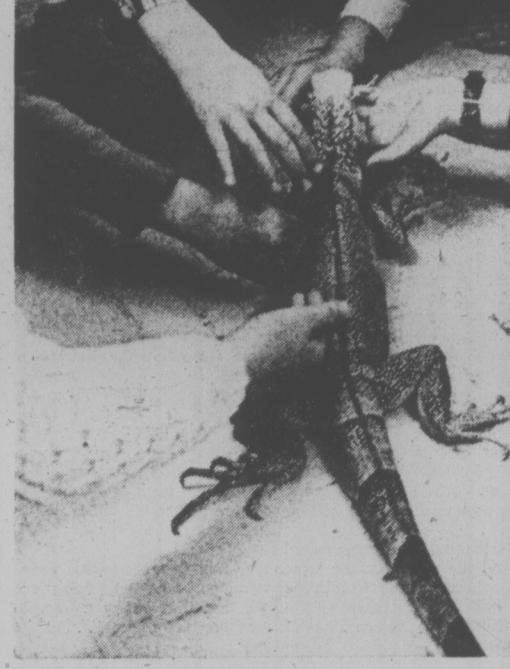

His classes have experimented in cross-breeding mice and is doing research on crayfish in conjunction with the federal fisheries station in Nanaimo.

He says crayfish, which may have potential for harvesting, have been located on the east coast of Vancouver Island but "no one seems to know about the west coast."

So his class is studying Muir Creek at Sooke, although they haven't found any yet.

Rent Up Jan. 1, Unless . . .

Victoria tenants who receive rent increase notices today or Saturday will have to start paying those increases Jan. 1, unless otherwise instructed on the rent notice.

A spokesman in the B.C. Rentaltsman office confirmed that the three-month written notice requirement for rent increases had been waived in certain instances, because the rent-increase legislation had been so long delayed.

As long as an increase notice is received on or before

Saturday, the date the legislation becomes effective, landlords can collect the increases Jan. 1.

But, the spokesman said, some tenants have been receiving notices of rent increases effective Feb. 1 or March 1, and those tenants need not pay the increases until those dates indicated on their written notice.

The spokesman said there had been much confusion over the new legislation, but both landlords and tenants.

Other provisions of the law include:

Rent increase notices given after Saturday, must fulfill the three-month written notice requirement.

No rent increases are allowed above the 10.6 per cent ceiling. Any tenant who receives an increase of more than the allowable level need only pay 10.6 per cent more than his previous rent.

No rent increase is allowed if there has been a previous increase within the past 12 months. That is, if a tenant had a rent increase on Feb. 1, 1974, there cannot be another one until Feb. 1, 1975.

Rent increases are tied to the apartment, not to any particular tenant. A rentaltsman spokesman explained that the rent on any apartment can only be raised once every 12 months, but a new tenant in an apartment can receive a rent increase notice anytime after he moves in, as long as that increase is the only one in the past 12 months on that apartment.

Tenants may not be intimidated," the spokesman said. "Landlords will not be allowed to threaten them with termination of tenancy."

A possible waiver on the 10.6 increase ceiling may be given to operators of mobile home parks, he said.

"These owners can appeal," he said, "because the new home parks was not proclaimed."

The mobile home park issue will be dealt with by the Rental Review Commission.

The spokesman said the RRC office would be "open for business on Monday" and the commission could be expected to make a judgment within days.

A Greater Victoria school board decree this month that classroom temperatures be dropped to 66 degrees has met with a varying response from local schools.

Most schools are inching into the change, reducing temperatures in hallways and gyms but not in classrooms. A few, however, have made an across-the-board temperature reduction.

"Sixty-six is too cold for children to sit in desks," Frank Hobbs elementary school principal Walter Kiteley said Thursday.

Children who come from homes heated to 70 degrees would find it too great a change, he said.

"Of course you don't want it too warm or the kids will go to sleep on you," said Kiteley. "I think that 66 to 70 degrees is the sensible temperature and that's just where ours stays."

J. A. Crowther, View Royal elementary school principal, said he had complaints from pupils and teachers when the temperatures were reduced to 66.

"I think with the winter coming on it's going to be some-

A head-on confrontation between the Greater Victoria school district and its 300 maintenance workers is a step nearer.

Union members will be asked at a meeting Dec. 8 to set a date for holding a strike vote, said Bob Cunningham, first vice-president of Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

He said members have already approved a no contract work position. The current contract expires Dec. 31.

Cunningham said a meeting under mediation officer Clark Gilmour Thursday produced no new offer from the school board. The union has turned down a wage increase of 12 per cent.

The employees want wage parity with construction trades which would mean a janitor earning $4.42 an hour would go to $7.12 paid to building labourers and school electricians earning $3.99.

He added that the union reduced its proposal by five per cent but when no new offer was made by the board, it turned down a wage increase of 12 per cent.

Cunningham accused school board negotiator E. E. Pearlman of "delaying all of it, by the time he gets through with the rest of the area and back to us. We can see no headway. Pearlman is prolonging any meaningful negotiations in the school district."

Pearlman replied that the charges are "completely without foundation" and were "not worthy of reply."

"The meetings are being conducted by Clark Gilmour. How he can say I'm delaying is beyond me," said Pearlman.

Ask The Times

Q Could you please tell me if there is a place in Victoria where one could have a doll repaired. A.R.

A There is no specific person at present repairing dolls in the city — apparently parts are hard to come by. But some repairs can be undertaken at Harlequin House, 621 Johnson Street, depending upon the nature of the damage.

—Peter Boldt, Central junior secondary school

thing of a problem, but we're trying it anyway," Crowther said.

The new board policy, an energy-saving measure, asks for temperature reductions "wherever possible and practical".

Northridge elementary school principal Janet Mort said she had complaints from chilly teachers and annoyed parents when the thermostats were turned down.

The problem with turning it down to 66, she said, is that when classrooms close to the school's furnace are at 66, classrooms far away from it drop to around 63.

Northridge is trying to find some happy medium, she said.

Horace Dawson, principal of S. J. Willis junior secondary school, said 66 just isn't warm enough for students sitting in classrooms.

However, some other areas of the school now have reduced temperatures, he said.

Peter Boldt of Central junior secondary school said the thermostats are being gradually reduced, but as soon as students or parents start to complain the reductions will halt.

'66 Is Too Cold for Children'

CROWTHER

Hearing a Breeze On Mace Project

Developer Jim Mace, who has had his fair share of appearances at stormy City Hall public hearings, couldn't have been more lucky Thursday.

His latest development proposal in the city, a remodelling job on the old B.C. Hydro substation at the corner of Bay and Government, passed unscathed through a public hearing without a single murmur of dissent from any quarter.

Mace plans to install two new floors and generally re-store the building to provide 20,000 square feet of office space. The development will proceed under a land-use contract.

In other business, council approved the rezoning of property at Hillside and Doncaster, across from Hillside shopping centre, for a 57-unit condominium to be built by Iteeson and Pinch Homes Ltd.

Flashback: When Allie Called Vancouver 'Bush'

It was wet outside, but down the corridors in smoke-filled rooms life went on. And when Annis Stukus hove in sight some of the younger people present could be excused for asking: who's he?

Who's he indeed? What heresy.

For it was just 20 years ago that the B.C. Lions completed their first ever season in the Canadian Football League, and Stukus was then the coach, placekicker, publicity chief, and whatever.

Some flashbacks were in order.

Because here was Big Stuke, a local hero from Toronto, via Edmonton, giving birth to a brand new franchise and experiencing all the labor pains with it.

But now it was only a few days away from the opening game of the 1954 season and when Stukus checked the box office he found to his dismay that for some inexplicable reason the football fans hadn't responded to the appeal for this new sport, and only about 14,000 planned to show up.

Meanwhile, back at Winnipeg, the coach of the Blue Bombers was Allie Sherman, more recently of the New York Giants of the National Football League, but then a rookie coach, just like Stuke. And his Bombers were due to be the first opponents for the Lions.

Do Anything—Insult Us

So Stuke devised a plan. He phoned Sherman and said: "Allie, I need help. The pre-game sale is down. I need some ink. I want you to do something, anything — insult us."

Sherman probably thought he was being set up for a trick play, but nonetheless he agreed to do what he could.

When the Bombers later flew into Vancouver for that historical first game they were met at the airport by the mayor, other dignitaries, a brass band, dancing girls, kids with autograph books, the whole bit.

Sherman took one look at the assembled gathering, stepped into the centre of the group, sneered and said: "What the hell is all this crap. I came to this bush town to play a football game, not to play party time. Get those cameramen and kids to hell out of here and let us get to our hotel."

Naturally, everyone was astounded.

And the next day the Vancouver Sun came out with an eight-column banner screaming the news that Sherman had called Vancouver "bush", that this wasn't a very nice thing to do, he could have been more diplomatic... But it worked.

Because suddenly a lot of Vancouver people decided that maybe they didn't have much to do on Saturday night after all, and they would flock to Empire Stadium to see for themselves this rude rookie coach from Winnipeg and also the newest game in town.

Then the Doublecross

Well, 21,000 finally showed up, and sure the Lions lost—they won only one game that inaugural season—but how they lost is something else. Because when Stuke saw the crowd filling in, he decided he'd doublecross Sherman in his own way. And, in best Knute Rockne manner, he took the paper with the "bush" label headline into the dressing room, made an impassioned address to his players on how everyone in the CFL was down on the poor newcomers calling them bushers who didn't belong... and a professional athlete's pride wouldn't let him stand for that, would it?

If Stuke didn't exactly break out in tears, he obviously did the next best thing. Because with Winnipeg favored by 21 points, it was the Lions who were leading 6-2 with only four minutes to play. Sherman, meanwhile, was going batty on the sidelines. Losing to these upstarts would be no joke.

At any rate, Bud Grant, the same who is now at Minnesota with the Vikings, caught a pass, tossed a lateral to Gerry James and the Bombers won 8-6.

Stukus some time later admitted the hoax and got Sherman off the hook by revealing the fact that he had only called Vancouver bush as a favor to him.

I'm not quite sure where Sherman is today, but big Stuke is alive and very well indeed, and doing a radio show in Vancouver.

But for this one occasion, them were the days.

Canada Third In Tenpin Test

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Canada, which took the women's doubles title earlier in the week, wound up third Wednesday in the five-woman team competition at the sixth American Zone tenpin bowling championships.

Cathy Townsend of Laval, Que., and Joanne Walker of LaSalle, Que., won the women's doubles and teamed with Lillian Hilton of Edmonton, Joyce Stoddart of Vancouver and Adeline Armstrong of Winnipeg to knock down 5,929 pins in the team event.

In the men's team competition, Canada placed sixth with 5,598 pins. The United States won both the women's and men's team events with record scores.

The U.S. women totalled 5,857 pins for six games, shattering the old mark of 5,272 set by another American team in 1969. After a record 2,988 start Tuesday, they came back Wednesday with 2,869. Venezuela finished second in the women's division with 5,492 pins.

Canada had Chuck Fass and Dick Wolff, both of Calgary, Lou Matassa of Leamington, Ont., George Hildebrand of Regina, Wayne MacKay of Windsor and Wally Iverson of Richmond, registered for the men's team event.

The U.S. men knocked down 6,200 pins, erasing the previous record of 5,668 set by Venezuela in 1968.

The Americans opened with a 2,952 series Tuesday and followed that with 3,248 Wednesday, another record. Their final game of 1146 also was an all-time high. Venezuela finished second with 6,062 and Mexico was third with 5,932.

Leading the singles competition are Olga Gloor of the U.S., with a 3,949-pin total after 18 games, and Virg Ender of the U.S., with 4,280 for 20 games.

SASKATOON (CP) — Major junior hockey operators are "fighting for their financial lives" and talk about a union for junior players will only create more problems for the operators. Ed Chynoweth of Saskatoon, president of the Western Canada Hockey League, believes.

Chynoweth was referring to comments by Brent Imlach, a partner in a Toronto firm called Pro Athlete Career Planning. Imlach, a former junior player from London, Ont., and son of Punch Imlach, general manager of Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League, said last week there is a need for a union for junior players.

Imlach said a union is needed to protect the players against such action as a move by the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series. That league earlier this year inserted a clause into junior contracts requiring the players to return 20 per cent of the money they earn in their first three years as professionals to the junior club for which they played.

"Imlach is obviously living in a dream land, or is trying to become established as a player agent by creating more problems for junior hockey operators," Chynoweth said in a prepared statement.

"If there are any problems facing junior hockey players today the major one would probably be the constant bouding of our players by player agents who suddenly have come into being and give the appearance of white knights in shining armor."

"The agents give the young players a super sales job of what he, the agent, can do for the athlete while quietly creaming his share of the gold off the top for fees rendered."

Chynoweth said the WCHL does not have a 20-per-cent clause in its contracts. He said the major problem facing the WCHL is the collecting of draft money from the professional leagues.

"What purpose would a union serve?"

Chynoweth said the WCHL has been paid for only six of the 78 juniors drafted last year by the NHL and WHA. Junior operators were starting to worry about the lack of funds, particularly since the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the two major professional leagues had not come to an agreement.

"One thing is certain. A union of junior hockey players would be of little benefit to us or the players. We have enough trouble getting money for our players without having to be faced with a union."

SIGNING professional baseball contract with Montreal Expos Thursday was Mike Finlayson, 20, of Victoria, as his father, Cliff, looks on. Finlayson played last two seasons with Fraser Arms of the Western International League, and before that was at

Green River College in Auburn, Wash. He will report to Daytona Beach, Fla. and play in the Florida Instructional League. Finlayson was signed by Wayne Norton, Canada's national baseball coach and an Expo scout. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Detroit Performances Frustate Delvecchio

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings are getting coach Alex Delvecchio down.

"We didn't give them much opposition," Delvecchio said after his team lost 5-2 to Buffalo Sabres in Thursday night's only National Hockey League game.

"We've got the jerseys and that's it," the Detroit coach said.

The Sabres had a 5-0 lead on the way to their eighth straight home victory, increasing their lead to eight points over second-place Boston Bruins in Division 4.

Buffalo's success must be especially frustrating for Delvecchio. Last year the Wings were only eight points worse than the Sabres when both teams missed the playoffs.

But this year, there already is a 23-point gap. Buffalo is the most points of any team in either the NHL or WHA, while only three of the 18 NHL teams have worse records than the Wings, who have only six wins and two ties in 22 starts.

The Sabres had a 5-0 lead on the way to their eighth straight home victory, increasing their lead to eight points over second-place Boston Bruins in Division 4.

Buffalo's success must be especially frustrating for Delvecchio. Last year the Wings were only eight points worse than the Sabres when both teams missed the playoffs.

It's the Sabres who make a big deal out of this," said Billy Kemp, a 14-year-old member of the Kenner, La. Leprechauns. "The way we pick these things up is by watching our parents."

The Leprechauns' arrival here last Sunday for a game Wednesday with Hamilton's West Mountain Alouettes was preceded by a letter from the suburban New Orleans community that stipulated none of the visiting team could be billeted with a black family.

Horace Jeremie, a black Trinidadian who emigrated to Canada from England nine years ago and whose 15-year-old son, Stephen, plays for Hamilton, took the matter to the Ontario Human Rights Commission.

Anonymous phone calls threatening racial demonstrations and court action besieged coaches of both teams Tuesday, forcing cancellation of Wednesday's game.

But after day-long meetings with members of both teams involved, officials decided to play the game Thursday. Hamilton won the game, 24-6.

Quarterback Greg Landry, completing 12 passes in a row, tried desperately to rally Detroit but could get only one fourth-quarter touchdown.

Before the winning touchdown strike, Landry had con-

Nova Scotians Benefit From Provincial Backing

Hearing from Halifax this week brings to mind an organization of which I had a first-hand glimpse on a visit to Nova Scotia earlier this year. It's Sport Nova Scotia which Ken Martin, the executive director, claims has lifted sports "off the kitchen floor" in his province.

"To visit Ken in his office is an impressive experience. Representatives of 54 amateur sports organizations—including sailing—work out of the office on Spring Garden Road near the old Lord Nelson Hotel. It's a very basic way of eroding the insulation and rivalry between sporting types!"

Sport Nova Scotia, although heavily backed and funded by the provincial department of recreation, is a non-profit organization. Its affairs are managed by 11 directors chosen from their respective sports, plus Ken, who is answerable both to them and the recreation minister.

The federal government

AROUND OUR SHORES

By Pat Dufour

also contributes some money. A grant of $31,000 helped bring Sport Nova Scotia into existence in 1972.

Apart from the main office, the organization helps the various groups by providing meeting space, administration assistance and advice on how to go after backing when it's needed.

The unique part of this program, however, is the fact that, although the provincial government is backing it all the way, the sports groups could learn something from the Atlantic from this particular year.

This pulling together of all sports groups has resulted in what Ken describes as "an awareness of sports that's quite unbelievable."

After following the effect Sport Nova Scotia has had in promoting water sports, I have to concede the Pacific could learn something from the Atlantic from this particular year.

Sailors belonging to the Canoe Bay Sailing Club were given an example of Aussie expertise Sunday when David Luk's Nova placed first overall out of 47 boats. Nova is a long way from her home waters of Australia but appeared ready and eager to move in Sunday's 14 knot winds.

Gill expects most opposition to the Island teams to come from Centennial of Coquitlam, Burnaby South, Sentinel and Carson Graham.

Islanders Favored

Athletes from Vancouver Island may well take all the trophies when the B.C. high school cross-country championships are run Saturday at White Rock.

"Island runners have done consistently well in the high school meet and this year we have probably the strongest representation ever," coach Stan Gill of Mt. Douglas says.

Gill predicted Sharon Young of Esquimalt, the undefeated Island champion, would win the 2.2-mile girls' race and that Tom Griffin of Mt. Doug would give defending-champion Bob Martens of Burnaby South a terrific battle in the 4.5-mile boys' event.

Esquimalt and Claremont were both taking full boys' and girls' teams while Mt. Doug, which won the boys' team title last year in Coquitlam, and Oak Bay are sending over just boys' squads. Brian Blamey and John Smith will lead the Oak Bay team.

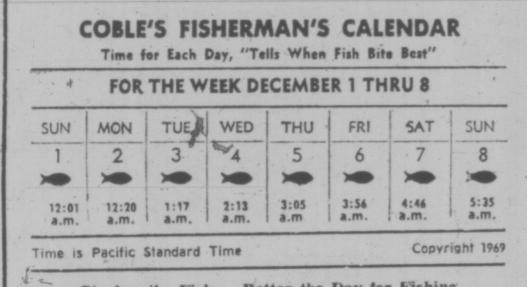

Esquimalt won the girls' Island championship and Gill believes the team should win the provincial title, too.

As well as the teams, some individual runners—including Julie Rainey of Belmont, Ulla Hansen of Mt. Doug and Dave Cox of Vic High—will compete.

Gill expects most opposition to the Island teams to come from Centennial of Coquitlam, Burnaby South, Sentinel and Carson Graham.

The second round of races in the current series will be sailed at Cadboro Bay Saturday, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Saanich Tough On Buccaneers

Esquimalt Buccaneers padded their lead in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League Thursday, but it wasn't an easy task.

Buccaneers were hard-pressed by Saanich Braves at the Esquimalt Sports Centre but managed to top the Braves, 4-3, on goals by Kerry Brewster, Ross McKinstry, Kevin Park and Dave Lale.

Chris Erb, Tom Davies and Mike Shemilt were the Braves' marksmen as Saanich led 2-1 after the first period before falling behind, 3-2, after 40 minutes.

Bill Pearce stopped 21 drives in the Esquimalt nets while Saanich goalie Gord Mitchell made 24 saves.

Wrestling Card At S. J. Willis

S. J. Willis' wrestlers come out tonight in a bid to add to their reputation.

Coached by Ed Ashmore, S. J. Willis is recognized as one of the strongholds of junior high wrestling. The school has compiled a 13-1, won-lost record in dual meets over the past five seasons.

The new season starts to night when S. J. Willis hosts Pitt Meadows, starting at 7 o'clock.

Marson Out to Prove His On-Ice Abilities

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — As only the second black player in the 58-year history of the National Hockey League, Mike Marson is easily recognizable. Now, he'd also like to gain recognition.

"All I have to do now is produce and people will begin looking at me for my ability," the Washington Capitals left winger said.

Until recently, most of the questions directed at Marson concerned his color.

It's a natural development, as there hasn't been a black in the NHL since Willie O'Ree, played 43 games for Boston Bruins in the 1969-71 season. Marson understands, but he's also a bit perturbed.

"It's all so bizarre," the 19-year-old Sudbury, Ont., junior player said. "When people talk about the first to do this or the second to do that; or worry about somebody's race."

"It's not just in sports, but all through society,"

Marson has been the chief source of publicity for the Capitals. Some critics claimed he was drafted simply for that reason.

"My first 16 games were brutal, so what else could people think?" Marson said. "But I've been playing better lately with more ice time, and I can feel myself progressing."

Obviously, the Capitals didn't give Marson a lucrative three-year contract for promotional purposes. They expect big things from their No. 2 draft choice who got 33 goals and 59 assists last season with Sudbury Wolves in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series.

Marson admits he foolishly reported to training camp 22 pounds over his 200-pound playing weight. Their poor play limited his ice time in the regular season, and he didn't score until pumping in two goals Nov. 19.

"For a while, I began having second thoughts about my ability," Marson said. "But I feel I'm now hitting and checking better, and playing my position with confidence. Now people can talk about my ability, and not my race."

UBC Provides Stiff Test For UVic's Basketballers

The first key test of the season faces coach Mike Gallo's University of Victoria Vikes tonight and Saturday when they host UBC Thunderbirds in a Canada West women's basketball tonight and Saturday at UVic. Vikings' fortunes could hang on the back of freshman guard Robbie Parris.

It's a big weekend for coach Gary Taylor's Vikings, too, as they face UBC Thunderbirds in Canada West men's basketball tonight and Saturday at UVic. Vikings' fortunes could hang on the back of freshman guard Robbie Parris.

"We'll somehow have to stop Carol," Gallo said Thursday. "She's a member of the national team and the key player with UBC." She's also the league's top rebounder with 54 and third leading scorer with an 18.7 points-a-game average. He's given Miss Auburn the assignment of containing her.

Vikettes, gunning for a championship, are in a three-way race for first place with UBC and Saskatchewan Huskies. All three schools have 4-0 won-loss records.

Parris, meanwhile, pulled a back muscle against Calgary Dinosaurs last weekend and is a doubtful starter.

"He's been our best man in the back court, a really steady influence," Taylor said. "I won't use him prematurely, though, because I don't want this to turn into a nagging injury all season."

Forward Leon Mitchell also is in the doubtful category. His right knee slipped out last week after a cartilage operation during the summer.

Forward Lorne Dakin, however, is expected to play despite a seven-stitch gash to the mouth suffered against Calgary.

Vikings are in a four-way jam-up for second place with Calgary, Alberta Golden Bears and Saskatchewan Huskies, all with 2-2 records. UBC leads with a 3-1 mark and has the league's top scorer in Steve Pettifer, who has been averaging 22.7 points a game. Vikings' top scorer is Jim Dudridge with 16 points (14 a game) good for ninth place in the league.

Three former Victoria area high school players are with UBC: Chris Trumpy and Brian Sutherland-Brown from Oak Bay and Avtar Bains from Reynolds.

Action both days begins at 4:30 with a junior varsity game between UVic and UBC followed by the women at 6:30 and men at 8:30.

Princess's Love Not for Amin

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)
President Idi Amin fired his foreign minister, former New York model Princess Elizabeth Bagaya, because she made love to an unidentified European in a Paris airport restroom, Uganda Radio said. The president also accused her of consorting with the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and the British security services.

"Miss Bagaya made love to an unknown European in a toilet," Amin said in announcing her dismissal Thursday.

A government statement said Amin deplored such conduct.

Diplomats said they had received reports that Miss Bagaya, who is believed to be in her late 20s, was still in Uganda under close surveillance.

Miss Bagaya, who was a successful model in New York before entering politics, carries the title of princess as a member of the former ruling lance without a permit to leave the country.

Miss Bagaya, a tall, slim woman with a degree to practice law, was named foreign minister last February after acting as the country's roving ambassador to the now defunct Kingdom of Toro in Uganda.

Radio Uganda said Amin's complaints against her included spending $19,200 allocated to Uganda's delegation at the United Nations and refusing to stay with the Uganda delegation during a visit to London.

The body of her predecessor in the foreign ministry was found floating in the Nile River a month after she took over his job.

BACH RECITALS SCHEDULED

An Advent recital series has been arranged by Beal Thomas, director of music at Christ Church Cathedral. The series begins Saturday and each recital, taking place at 4 p.m., will feature a major work by Johann Sebastian Bach and other composers.

Bach's five-part Fantasia in C minor is the principal work to be played this Sturday. The artist will be Peter Bishop, sub organist to the cathedral.

A special feature of the program will be James Kennedy, faculty member of Victoria Conservatory of Music, who will play his own transcriptions for tenor recorder of lute music by Sylvius Leopold Weiss, a famous contemporary of Bach.

Kennedy and Bishop will also play Solo in B minor by Telemann for baroque flute and harpsichord and Bishop will play organ works by Mendelssohn and Wesley.

The series will continue Saturdays until Christmas. Next week's program will present the Cantabile singers directed by Madeline Groos.

Cellist Slated Tonight

Cellist Rolf Gilstein will be featured in a recital at Craigdarroch Castle tonight at 8.

The recital is one of a series sponsored by Victoria Conservatory of Music. Friday nights, Gilstein is a third year University of Victoria performance major student.

For his recital, he has chosen a Bach Sonata in G and a Suite for unaccompanied cello in D minor by Bach as well as sonatas by Vivaldi and Boccherini.

OTTAWA (CP) — A delegation of Arab-Canadians met External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen Thursday to call for a reassessment of the Canadian Middle East position.

The delegation, headed by Louis Azzaria, president of the Canadian Arab Federation, said it is time Canada recognized the right of the Palestinians to sovereignty and independence.

Azzaria, a professor at Laval University in Quebec City, said after the meeting that the minister gave no indication of changing from past positions.

MacEachen has recently reaffirmed the Canadian support for 1967 security Council Resolution 242 which says Israel has the right to exist behind secure and recognized boundaries and talks about the need for solution of what it calls the Palestine refugee problem.

City Reservists On UN Force

Seven Victoria reservists — four from HMCS Malahat and three militiamen — are with the Canadian contingent of the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East.

One of the first to reach the Middle East was Cpl. Paul Paone, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Paone of 53 Regina, who arrived in Cairo June 7 with the 3rd Canadian Service Battalion.

After working at Camp Shams in 'Calvo and at Ismailia Airfield Camp, 80 miles northeast of the city, he worked as a dispatcher on the Golan Heights before moving back to Ismailia in early October. Paone is a member of the Victoria Militia Service Battalion.

LS Christopher Preston was the first naval reservist to reach Cairo. A communicator, Preston, who was attending Camosun College before going overseas, has served with the signals unit at Camp Shams and the Ismailia camp. He is the son of Lt.-Cdr. and Mrs. A. J. Preston of 273 Zeta.

Cpl. M. S. (Mickey) Graham of Headquarters, Militia Area Pacific, arrived in Egypt June 4, working at administration, dispatching and driving with the Administration Company's transport section. Son of Major and Mrs. Thomas Graham of Sidney, he's based at Ismailia, travelling to the Golan Heights and other areas.

PO Gordon Butterfield of HMCS Malahat and Cpl. Leonard Wooliven of the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, arrived in Egypt Sept. 3.

First reservist to serve in Egypt at the sergeant level, Butterfield is responsible for the operation of all telephone switchboards at the Ismailia camp and headquarters.

Wooliven is in the supply section of the 3rd Canadian Service Battalion at the Ismailia camp, working in both the quartermaster's stores and the company office. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Wooliven of 3122 Metchosin.

Lt.-Cdr. John Walter is the only naval reserve officer to serve in the Middle East. He and his family live at 1424 Fairfield. During September and October he was with the Canadian emergency force's information services.

All the Victoria reservists volunteered to serve for periods up to six months.

Candy Report Hoax

MONTREAL (CP) — A news release on which The Canadian Press based a story linking decreased physical activity with candy consumption was a hoax.

A three-page purported news release was received by CP's Montreal news bureau, accompanied by a letter on University of Montreal stationery, outlining the alleged findings.

The document said members of the University's medical and physical education faculties had co-operated in the research. Heads of both departments said Thursday they had never heard of the report or any such project in progress.

A spokesman at the university information office explained that the format of the release was significantly different from the one used for at least two years.

The covering letter accompanying the release was typed on common stationery bearing the University's letterhead, which was available to almost anyone. The information office issues releases on its own special paper.

CAVEAT EMPTOR:

Be Sure About Hockey Gear

By LYNN GORDON

Sports are big business these days and outfitting a child to participate can take a big bite out of your budget.

No one wants to discourage children from playing sports. It can be great for their physical and mental health if played properly. But when you go to spend a large chunk of money, are you sure it's because your child is serious about the sport or are you putting pressure on him to excel. Or did you want him to keep up with the kid next door?

Certainly at Christmas it's a big temptation to buy sporting gear as a gift... either to start him off on a new game or to upgrade the equipment he has already. Before you make that decision, it's important to know exactly what is necessary and how to buy it. There are a lot of confusing areas for parents when they shop for hockey equipment.

HOCKEY EQUIPMENT

Once your child gets into hockey there is no doubt that you should be prepared to spend anywhere from $150 and up, depending on the age of the child and how fast he grows.

Inflation has boosted the price of hockey equipment about 40 per cent due to the high cost of materials — such as leather, steel, nylon, cotton and the high cost of labour.

But no matter what you spend... the most vital factor is FIT. I can't emphasize that enough. In fact you can scrimp on quality if you have to and stay with lower priced merchandise, just as long as the equipment fits.

And every piece is necessary for absolute safety. If you want more assurance that ALL the gear is important, take a look at the professionals. And let's face it, when two kids are out on the ice and they collide, the impact is just as great for them as it is for the men. The ice is just as hard, skates are just as sharp and it's just as easy to get hit by a stick or a puck.

Because fit is so important, resist the temptation to buy ahead of time. Why not gift-wrap a hockey stick and a gift certificate to go under the tree and promise to get the rest when you can go shopping together.

Hockey helmets are mandatory in all hockey leagues affiliated with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and they should be mandatory whenever your child is on ice — playing anywhere.

As of last year, every hockey helmet must meet CSA standards for safety. No, others should be on the market. So check for the CSA seal.

Here again, watch the fit. Don't try to buy it a couple of sizes larger. An improperly fitted helmet can be knocked off more easily.

CCM has a fully adjustable two-piece helmet which gets the blessing of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. But recently, CCM has developed a new mouthguard explicitly designed to be fixed to the helmet. It comes down the side of the helmet and bends out and around the outside of the mouth in a rigid fixed position. This supplies maximum safety and comfort.

This mouthguard has created so much attention that the Ontario Dental Association, while it has not given it official endorsement as yet, is very impressed with the design. They would like to see more mouthguards like this one.

In fact, the design is so good and offers so much protection that The Life Insurance Company of North America is experimenting with a new insurance plan. The agent in Toronto for the Hockey League — Graham Stewart — has worked out a plan where the company will offer double benefits to any player hurt while wearing this mouthguard. If the plan works and the protection is as good as he believes, the plan will be extended across Canada.

Every kid, no matter what his age, should wear an outer mouthguard. In addition, the dentists would like to see an intra-oral mouthguard used at the same time. These must be fitted by the dentist, much as he would fit false teeth. There is a concerted attempt by the Ontario Dental Association to keep the cost down to about $6 or $7 and make them available on a community basis. That's a small amount to put out and can save you thousands in dental bills... and statistics show that about 50 per cent of all hockey injuries are around the mouth.

Many of the older kids are still pretty resentful of the outer mouthguard, but they will agree to the intra-oral one... so be sure to get it, although the outer mouthguard is ideal.

SKATES

The next hunk of money is for your skates. But here again... it's FIT. Don't try to save money and buy them large enough for growing feet. It just doesn't work that way.

Not only is the proper fit important for safety and pleasure, but it's economical as well. They wear longer, won't break down as easily. Skates that are too big, instead of conforming readily, will develop a kind of a crease across the Achilles Heel tendon area.

Skates should fit extremely tight in this area. The toes should not touch the front of the boot. When trying them on, start lacing the boot, reasonably tight. Then lift the foot, tap the back of the skate on the floor until the heel is as far back as it can go. Then tighten the laces all the way. Test to make sure the foot doesn't slide out of the heel slot. It's absolutely necessary to lace the skates up full before buying. Top quality skates have a sharper, livelier edge and wear better.

Now, just go down the line using the same advice. Fit is just as important for the shoulder pads, the shin pads, elbow pads and gloves. An athletic supporter and protective cup is necessary. Pants should have features that protect the kidney, spine and thighs. Remember chipped bones can mean the end of a playing career.

And, now that you are aware of some of the questions to ask, throw them at the salesman and see how he responds. If he doesn't seem knowledgeable or take enough time to walk out. The biggest rip-off in sporting equipment is not with the equipment... it's with having to deal with an untrained salesman. And that can mean... not only money out of your pocket... it can mean the health of your child.

So now that you are ARMED with the facts... DISARM the salesman.

OWN DESIGN for totem is worked on by Jim Gilbert of Coles Bay, Saanichton. It's a 10-foot heraldic pole with two figures, thunderbird holding copper and sea bear holding halibut. Display was part of recent hobby projects exhibit at the Saanichton fairgrounds.

STONY PLAIN, Alta. (CP)

Dr. Viljoen Kritzinger quoted a British medical journal which supported hysterectomies for sterilization "in some cases" in his continuing defense over the number of hysterectomies he has performed since 1972.

Dr. Kritzinger, former medical chief of staff at the Stony Municipal Hospital, testified last week before a provincial inquiry into the operations of the hospital.

A report by representatives of the Alberta College of Physicians and Surgeons said 41 of 60 hysterectomies performed at the hospital were unjustified because pathological studies failed to detect disease in the removed tissue.

The inquiry has been told that Dr. Kritzinger performed 51

Dr. Kritzinger cited an article which appeared in the British medical journal, by a University of Dundee specialist, which said a simpler form of sterilization — tube litigation — leads to pelvic and menstrual problems.

Dr. Kritzinger said the article reported that 43 per cent of 374 patients followed for 10 years after a tubal litigation needed further treatment, and he quoted an American study showing that a high percentage of bleeding problems followed tubal litigation.

Dr. Kritzinger said he reviews each case history when sterilization has been requested to determine which method should be used. If the patient is fit and there are no abnormalities, a simple tubal litigation is indicated.

The doctor said the patient's history, especially the presence of menstrual problems, decides what procedure will be recommended.

Trades for Women
'Most Important'

WASHINGTON (AP)

Learning a trade and making decisions are two of the most important areas for women, says Francoise Giroud, France's secretary for women's affairs.

Mrs. Giroud stressed the need for women to learn a trade.

"That is the most important thing in the world. They have to be able to support themselves, you know, and to support their children. That they have to stick to a man because you can't pay the rent is something abominable..." she said.

Women should participate in all decisions because "there are certain values which are specific to women."

One that she noted was protection of life, adding "I just trust women to avoid atomic war. I don't trust men for that."

Mrs. Giroud said the condition of women and their treatment in France is being reviewed through use of "secret evaluators" travelling around the country much as some guidebooks use secret visitors to check restaurants.

"I have women going everywhere," she said. "They are looking for equality in salaries, of course, and how the boss treats his secretary and how the sales girls are treated."

Dr. Kritzinger said the article reported that 43 per cent of 374 patients followed for 10 years after a tubal litigation needed further treatment, and he quoted an American study showing that a high percentage of bleeding problems followed tubal litigation.

Dr. Kritzinger said the article reported that 43 per cent of 374 patients followed for 10 years after a tubal litigation needed further treatment, and

Dr. Kritzinger said he reviews each case history when sterilization has been requested to determine which method should be used. If the patient is fit and there are no abnormalities, a simple tubal litigation is indicated.

DIVORCE RATE UP AGAIN

OTTAWA (CP) — The divorce rate was the highest on record last year, continuing an upward trend which began in 1961, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

In 1973 there were 36,704 divorces — a rate of 166.1 per 100,000 — or roughly one for every 140 married couples and the rate was up 12 per cent over 1972.

In 1972 the 32,364 divorces reflected a rate of 148.8 per 100,000. That rate has gone up every year since 1961

Drug Abuse Warning

By DR. FRANK MILLER

EDMONTON (CP) — Abuse of pain-killing and other legal drugs is a growing and major problem, says Doreen Zinky, president of the Alberta Pharmaceutical Association.

"I have known people to take as many as 30 22s a day," Mrs. Zinky said in an interview.

"They're zapped right out. When they realize you've caught on they start sending their children to buy the pills. These are people you build up friendships with in a suburban store."

Canada allowed more non-prescription drugs to be sold over the counter last year than did any other country.

Wonderful World of Animals

mentioned something about not stopping feeding birds once you started it. I'm wondering if you mentioned the danger of feeding birds which normally migrate, but don't migrate on time because you're feeding them. You know these birds can get into real trouble if they wait too long to fly south, because they run into storms, and all that sort of thing and might never make it. Please warn people about this. —N. R.

DEAR N. R.: Fat birds fly further. Migrators with a heavy fat layer have more fuel to fly on and consequently have a better chance to make a long migration. From that standpoint then, ample provisions prior to flight are necessary. Many birds who don't make it, falter and fall because of inadequate provisioning originally combined with failure to find enough food along the way. So, consequently, it's difficult to determine whether or not to give these birds extra food. For some, it undoubtedly proves confusing and these may delay their flight too long. From this standpoint then, it's probably better to discontinue feeding stations during the summer, thus allowing Mother Nature to handle the problem in her time-honored way.

For those who continue to keep their feeders in full operation with the coming of fall, I feel the feedings should continue from there on through the winter months when the birds remaining may become really dependent upon this food supply.

DEAR DR. MILLER:

I understand that cats don't pant unless it's terribly hot. We're going into some pretty hot weather and I'm wondering how much heat a cat can be expected to stand. In other words, at what temperature is it really dangerous for them? What can I do about it? —E. E.

DEAR E. E.: With a relative humidity of 50 per cent or more and when the outside air temperature reaches 90 degrees Fahrenheit, a cat's internal temperature begins to rise. At a temperature approaching 100 degrees (or even lower if the humidity is high), the poor cat will begin to pant, appearing distressed and anxious. Prolonged exposure at 105 degrees is fatal. A panting cat needs to cool quickly. Keep the head and neck bathed with cold water. Find the coolest, best ventilated area available and make the cat as comfortable as possible there.

Obviously, it is not advisable or logical to subject your cat to extremely high temperatures. If you expect to visit a superheated area, it would be better to leave your cat in cooler climates and avoid the

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Saturday, Nov. 30

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Short trip is on agenda. You are called upon to complete a mission. Another Aries — and a Libran — could be in picture. Ideas are tossed about — and you are called upon to choose, to set policy. Enjoy it! Don't permit temporary pressure to cause tension.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You receive "411" concerning money markets. And this could ride range from bargain at supermarket to sophisticated information related to stock market. Be alert, aware and ready to pounce on legitimate opportunity. Leo is in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

one who is delighted — and flattered — to provide answers. Be ready for significant change that could involve travel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

Accent is on what has occurred — and potential for future.

You have choice now of hanging on to past — or projecting into future. Whatever,

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

Be selective. Avoid jumping at first offer. You may be dealing with slick persons, types who are legal but "on the edge." Know it and protect yourself in clinches.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.

22-Dec. 21): You face opposition, but position is strong.

Legal maneuver occurs but you land on your feet.

Older individual is envious but you can win your way. You will be doing some emotional bobbing and weaving — but you also land some telling blows. You will understand!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19): Work associates, basic issues, health — these come into focus. Aries, Libra persons are likely to be in picture.

You may find that one era is finished and another is getting started — including new personnel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb.

Leo is in picture and, so, too, is another Aquarian. Imprint your own style, hear sound of your own voice.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be specific, knowledgeable about details. Take nothing for granted. Obtain promises, agreements in written form. Your intuition is sharply honed. Trust it! You are on right track in connection with property, home matter.

Medical Report

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

After the first year he forgot all about child support. I had a good job, so I never hounded him.

Last year, our son enlisted in the air force. Five months later he was killed in a training accident.

Abby, that boy saw his father maybe a dozen times in the last 15 years. His father never remembered his son on his birthday or Christmas either.

Guess who showed up at our son's funeral? His father! Now for the unbelievable part: my ex-husband told me at the funeral that he was "entitled" to half our son's life insurance. (The insurance was made out to me.) I told him where to go, and he said he plans to sue me. And he probably will.

Have you ever heard anything to equal that? Shocked?

DEAR SHOCKED: No. But if any of my readers have, they'll probably let me know. Does anyone else care to nominate a candidate for "Heel of the Year"?

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife are secretly married. My husband and I stood up for them. Brother is 31, and Ellen (made up name) is 27.

Brother and Ellen do not live together. She lives with her parents and has his own apartment.

Ellen has not yet told her parents that she is married, and she has given my brother orders not to give away the secret. I think she's ashamed of him, which really upsets me because he is a super guy.

They finally told my parents, Abby, they've been married a year. Last week my parents had a little anniversary celebration party for them. Her folks weren't invited because they still haven't been told about the marriage. It was all so one-sided and weird.

I cannot understand why Ellen won't tell her folks. Neither she nor brother has been married before, there is no racial or religious conflict and my brother doesn't have two heads. In fact, he is very handsome. What do you make of this? — "B"

DEAR "B": I don't know Ellen's reason for keeping her marriage a secret, but whatever it is, it's not your problem. It's hers and your brother's.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding baby-sitters who write and complain that they can't stand dirty houses.

I was a sitter once myself, for many years, in fact. Some of the houses where I went to sit were very untidy, to say the least. But why complain and act so self-righteous? Some women are poor housekeepers because they never were taught any different. Some are lazy, and others don't feel very well most of the time.

Instead of complaining about the messy house, why not clean it up? Then you can "sit" in a clean house and also have the indescribable inner joy of helping others without being told, or expecting to be paid for it. It will make you feel good all over.

Above all, be charitable, and don't tell others about the woman's poor housekeeping. And read Corinthians 13. We all need love. — Mrs. W. R.

DEAR MRS. R.: You are beautiful.

the brain, and "ischemia" means lack of blood. I often wondered why in so many cases of a perfectly obvious stroke, able physicians who had seen the patient had failed to make the very easy diagnosis. Usually this failure was due to the fact that at college the attending physician had never been taught to notice that the head of a big corporation had been very dull in his answers to questions, and had a face much too dull, and expressionless for his position in life. He obviously had had "brain damage."

But almost always the wife promptly becomes as unpleasant and vituperative as she knows how to be. Instead of making her home a pleasant refuge for the man after his day's work, she makes it so uncomfortable that he is driven into the arms of the other woman.

Women have no monopoly on jealousy. Many men, too, are guilty of this sin. Of course, any one who loves deeply is likely occasionally to feel a twinge of jealousy, but the wise person realizing that his jealousy is merely a desire to possess the spouse in a grasping, infantile way, does not let it turn him into a nasty, unpleasant person.

I just read an article on "transient cerebral ischemia," of little strokes, a disease which I have seen so often in my 68 years of experience that I think it is one of the three most common diseases of man. ("Cerebral" refers to the brain, and "ischemia" means lack of blood.) I often wondered why in so many cases of a perfectly obvious stroke, able physicians who had seen the patient had failed to make the very easy diagnosis. Usually this failure was due to the fact that at college the attending physician had never been taught to notice that the head of a big corporation had been very dull in his answers to questions, and had a face much too dull, and expressionless for his position in life. He obviously had had "brain damage."

Also, the physician could have made the diagnosis in a few seconds if he had only known the enormous value of asking the man's wife if the awful change in him had come suddenly.

If the wife is not asked, it practically never seems to occur to the patient that he suddenly was markedly changed, probably because in a moment his brain had been so badly injured that his memory was impaired.

What actually happens in the brain when a little stroke occurs? A little artery probably becomes plugged up, and the blood-flow to the tissue around it is stopped. In many cases, the artery is so tiny that the blood quickly is able to flow around the damaged area and take over its function.

ST. LOUIS OUTFIELDER SELECTED TOP ROOKIE

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bake McBride set two goals during spring training last year — a hitting average of more than .300 for St. Louis Cardinals and baseball's National League rookie of the year honors.

His .309 average as a centre-fielder gave him one goal. The Baseball Writers Association of America provided the other Wednesday in announcing his selection as top rookie.

McBride received 16 votes to seven for runner-up Greg Gross of Houston Astros. Bill Madlock of Chicago Cubs got one vote.

The Bridge Expert

the South hand. He would next lead a low diamond to dummy's jack, being perfectly willing to concede a trick in this suit to the defenders' king. It would now be impossible to prevent declarer from making one spade, one heart, five diamonds, and two clubs.

And so, as happens quite often in real life, declarer lost his contract by a misplay at trick one.

On West's opening club lead, the six-spot was played from dummy and East captured the trick with his king. East returned the spade deuce and South really had no choice but to play the six. If, instead, he won the trick with his ace, he would have no entry to his to-be-established diamond suit.

Upon winning, East's spade return with his king, West shifted to the ten of hearts. Declarer finessed the dummy's queen, but to no avail. East won with the king, and played back the heart three. West's nine being taken by the board's ace.

Dummy's jack of diamonds was led next, the finesse being taken against East's hoped-for king. But West won the trick and returned the seven of hearts. East promptly cashed two heart tricks, and declarer ended up losing three hearts, one spade, one diamond and one club, to incur a two-trick set. What was declarer's error?

South could have assured his contract by putting up dummy's queen of clubs at trick one, instead of playing low. In theory, if the queen had won (if West possessed the club king), South would next have led the jack of diamonds and finessed. Although the finesse would have lost, declarer would now have nine tricks: one spade, one heart, five diamonds, and two clubs.

With the queen of clubs lost to the king, East would have returned a spade, as he actually did. Now South could afford to go right up with his ace, since he would have the jack of clubs as an entry to Thursday.

Ed Fairbairn, president of the International Typographical Union Local 226, said a substantial majority of printers voted to accept the agreement which contains a provision to give night-shift printers a rotating schedule of day work.

Unofficial count Thursday evening was 176 in favor, 111 opposed, with nearly all of the 300 members voting.

Fairbairn said contract provisions included 30 more day-shift positions at Pacific Press, and nightshift workers would share these jobs on a rotating basis every three months. This would give everyone a chance to work dayshift approximately three months a year, he said.

Six other unions earlier voted to accept the new contract in early November, and the ITU voted 192 to 120 to reject the earlier proposal.

Both the original and amended contracts give employees in top scales $320 a week.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1-IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2-BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3-MAKE IT EASY for the reader to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4-PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5-PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6-GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7-WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8-TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number, to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily. Monday through Saturday call:

Queen Jumping Up and Down, in French, Angers Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — Senators into the CBC on Thursday over a French-network satirical program that portrayed the Queen and the wife of the Governor-General.

But when CBC President Laurent Picard invited them to watch a British Broadcasting Corp. BBC program that he said went much further in spoofing the Queen, the senators didn't want to know about it.

The question came up in the Senate's transport and communications committee, which hauled the CBC president before it to consider the content of a program in Les Beaux Dimanches television show.

The program started with a "message from the Queen" in which the Queen said the show came via a Crown corporation: "My Crown."

She then went on to say it came via "my studios, my cameras, my technicians," finally rising from her throne to jump up and down shouting: "It's all mine, mine, mine."

Most of the senators were scandalized by the Queen sequence and by a sequence showing Mme. Jules Leger receiving a visitor at Government House.

Mme. Leger was portrayed as showing the visitor around the Governor-General's residence, which was compared favorably in size with the prime minister's residence and the residence of Mrs. Leger's brother-in-law, Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger.

Chomplained on the French provincial furniture in the residence, Mme. Leger says: "I had to fight to keep my French provincial; the officials wanted me to use English federal."

There was a portrait of the prime minister, with an interchangeable face that rolled up. Mme. Leger was portrayed as saying Prime Minister Trudeau was best, then rolled up Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield's face, saying he was next best, and then Social Credit Leader Real Caouette's face saying he was worst.

The bathroom was fitted out like Parliament, and Mrs. Leger said that was installed by former governor-general Roland Michener "to prepare my French provincial; the officials wanted me to use English federal."

Senator Daniel Riley (L-New Brunswick) said after the program was shown: "I don't see one ounce of indecency" in it. He wondered why senators were wasting their time about it.

But later, after other senators showed displeasure, the former New Brunswick premier said he agrees that Parliament must keep control on the CBC. He said he found the Queen's dancing up and down "a bit disgraceful."

Senator Louis Robichaud (L-New Brunswick) said after

He added that he would be frightened by anything that would prevent the French network from doing the same things as the English network.

The BBC program he wanted to show the senators he described as a far more severe spoof of the Queen than the CBC sequence they had seen.

A CBC technician said it came from the Monty Python series and already has been shown on the CBC English network.

But the senators refused to watch it.

PEKING — Four days of talks between U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Chinese leaders ended Thursday night with both sides reaffirming their commitment to the progressive normalization of their relations. There was no spectacular breakthrough on the Taiwan issue that is blocking diplomatic relations between them.

In choosing that title he conveniently overlooked the fact that Newfoundland no longer held the dominion status that normally would call for a high commissioner.

The prime minister's telegram is among 1,328 official documents published in the first of two thick volumes titled Documents on Relations between Canada and Newfoundland 1935-1949.

The first book collects papers dealing with defense, civil aviation and economic affairs. A second volume covering documents on Confederation itself will be published "in due course." The department says this must wait until cabinet papers, sequestered because of a 30-year secrecy rule, are made public.

Three months later he took a step in that direction. He persuaded Charles J. Burchell of Halifax to give up his post as high commissioner in Australia and become Canada's diplomatic agent in Newfoundland.

During the next year or two the question of Newfoundland's relation to Confederation is quite likely to become an important issue," King said in a confidential telegram to Burchell in Canberra, the Australian capital.

"In the circumstances, we think it desirable to emphasize Canada's special relationship with Newfoundland, and propose to do so by appointing a high commissioner there."

Contract Upheld Over Practice

The B.C. Labor Relations Board has ruled in favor of a city employee in a dispute involving pay for emergency overtime work.

Board chairman Paul Weller, in a written decision handed down earlier this week, said Jim Walker, a filter in the water works department, is entitled to three hours pay at the overtime rate after being called back to work to clear a possible allock in a waterline.

A section in the Canadian Union of Public Employees,

Local 50, contract with the city says employees called back on an emergency basis shall receive a minimum of three hours pay "at the prevailing rate."

The city argued that Walker's prevailing rate is his regular rate of pay. The union and Walker contended the prevailing rate is the rate payable for the work performed, time and one-half.

Weller said the language of the contract, read in context, "is clearly inconsistent with the position of the city." He noted that the contract stated "prevailing" rate and not "normal" rate.

Weller acknowledged that the city has administered this part of the contract "for a considerable number of years on the assumption that only three hours pay at the normal rates was guaranteed on an emergency call."

But he rejected arguments that past practice should prevail because the contract language "on its face is sufficiently clear that extrinsic evidence may not be used to alter its meaning, and that is certainly true of the character of the evidence advanced here."

He added that even a long-standing error in interpretation of a contract may be corrected "once it is discovered by one of the parties."

V.I. Teachers Settle

Teachers and trustees from Saanich, Gulf Islands and Lake Cowichan school districts have reached agreement on teachers' contracts for 1975.

The settlements came out of zonal bargaining sessions, involving six lower Vancouver Island school districts, that have been going on this week in downtown hotels.

Talks on teachers' salaries for Greater Victoria, Sooke and Cowichan school districts continued today.

W. T. Stanbury, government-appointed conciliator for the six districts, expressed optimism that settlements might be reached today in these three districts as well.

"Substantial progress has been made in the discussions between the committee of the B.C. School Trustees Association representing the various school boards, and the committees of teachers," Stanbury said.

The Saanich teachers' settlement is for salary increase just over 16 per cent in 1975.

Trustee Norma Sealey said today.

The settlement has already been ratified by Saanich teachers and approved by the school board.

"I think that there are mixed feelings about it," Sealey said of the board. "Some people feel that it's a bit rich. But under the circumstances I think it was the best that could be done."

Most teachers' agreements across the province appear to be in the 16 to 17 per cent increase range, according to G. R. Kirby of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

Total number of settlements or agreements in committee grew to 49 out of 74 B.C. school districts after 15 districts reached agreement Thursday.

Midnight tonight is the deadline set by Education Minister Eileen Daily for contract disputes to be resolved before going to arbitration.

Government legislation Nov. 7 broke an impasse between teachers and trustees over the move by 68 school boards to introduce province-wide bargaining this year.

Teachers insisted on retaining local bargaining.

A compromise, zoning bargaining involving school districts in 17 regions of the province, was reached and talks began week ago across the province.

The Nov. 7 legislation extended the arbitration deadline from Nov. 15 to Nov. 29 and ensured that arbitration boards would operate on a local basis, not a province-wide basis.

JAIL OPENS DOORS TO OUTSIDERS

ABBEYFORD (CP) — College education is nothing new in penal institutions, but Matsqui institution near here will offer a variation of the theme starting in January.

The penitentiary near this community about 45 miles east of Vancouver is offering its facilities to outside students of Fraser Valley College, who will be issued passes to attend class within the prison.

Frank Dolman, director of career education for the college, said the first class will be in welding, with a maximum of 16 students. Other classes will offer pre-apprenticeship courses in auto mechanics and auto body repair.

Dave Dhillon, assistant director of occupational development for Matsqui prison, said he believed it is the first time in Canada for such a program.

"We hope to enrol up to 25 per cent of our prisoners in the program," he said.

POLICE KEEP FUGITIVE UNDER WRAPS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man wanted for questioning in an underworld killing case was whisked into Vancouver police cells Thursday under tight security.

Dick Schiere, 27, was accompanied to the city by a police officer after his arrest in Holland earlier this week under a warrant naming him a fugitive from Canada.

His arrival time at Vancouver International Airport from Montreal was kept secret for fear of retaliation by enemies, police said.

Schiere is thought by police to have been with Brian Boyko when Joe Kallin was shot to death in an east end alley April 6. Boyko is serving a life sentence for the drug-related murder.

Ottawa Orders $3M Study Of Fundy Tides' Potential

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government said Thursday it is still interested in harnessing the hydroelectric potential of the Bay of Fundy tides and ordered a new $3-million study of the possibility.

The study's initial stages will include investigation of possible sites, markets and a review of transmission facilities, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said in a preliminary review tabled in the Commons.

The bay, between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, has a range of 53 feet between high and low tides — the highest in the world.

Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia has been pressing for construction of dams across the bay to trap tidal water for generating electricity.

In 1969, a study by Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ottawa said the idea was technically feasible but could not compete with electricity generated at oil- and coal-fired thermal stations.

But provincial officials say the rapid increases in oil prices have made tidal power competitive.

Ottawa's review of 1969 in Eastern Canada for $7.50 to $8 a barrel.

"I think principally because of the change in oil prices tidal power is closer to reality than before," Macdonald said outside the House.

But he stopped short of endorsing the project before the new studies are completed.

"I try to reserve judgment on these things, I don't think we should get a fixation on any one new energy project."

He did not anticipate tidal power coming on stream quickly. The initial stages of the new study are expected to take two years to complete.

MEAT GRADER WALKOUT SOON ENDS

TORONTO (CP) — Thirty-four federal government meat graders in five cities, who walked out in a wage dispute Wednesday, returned to the job Thursday.

The graders are members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, which has tied up grain shipments through a strike of 222 grain inspectors which began last Saturday.

The meat graders walked out in Metropolitan Toronto; Hamilton, Burlington, Ont.; Edmonton and Saskatoon. The strike led to fears originally that shoppers at some stores would have no guide to the quality of the meat they buy though there would be no question as to its edibility.

Hoffa

Saturday, November 30 (8:00-9:00 P.M.) Channel 4
Saturday, November 30 (8:00-9:00 P.M.) Channel 4
Jimmy Hoffa was head of the Teamsters, the nation's largest trade union, until he was convicted and jailed for jury tampering, fraud and conspiracy involving misuse of union pension funds. The story of the rise and fall of this powerful, enigmatic man and the facts surrounding President Nixon's commutation of his federal prison sentence are revealed in this gloves-off telecast.

CAVETT QUILTS ABC FOR CBS

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW
NEW YORK. Dick Cavett, the Emmy award winning talk show host for the ABC network, has signed a contract with CBS for guest appearances and a possible return to CBS for his "Late Show" in 1976.

"I'm very pleased that I'll be working with CBS," Cavett said. "I've checked their references and they come highly recommended."

Cavett had been ABC's late night host since December 1983. In 1982, he was cut to two shows monthly.

Their Education Is Coming Alive

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A teacher's pet sometimes is a pet. And the children love it.

At Frank Hobbs school, Grade 3 teacher Mrs. Ruth Kirwan is proud of her pets — a trio of snakes.

She has a half" python, a constrictor and a Cuban rainbow boa.

She keeps them in large terrarium in the classroom.

At one time or another, she has had a monitor lizard, iguana, newts, toads and, of course, gerbils.

Why?

"First, they are terrific for boys, they just love them," she says.

"There is nothing to capture

a child's imagination more than a unique pet."

Except in zoos, snakes at close quarters are unique.

She says most people have an unfounded fear of snakes. They don't carry germs and have beautiful patterns.

Mrs. Kirwan, who uses the pets in her animal studies course, says she starts off the school year by sitting with a snake in her lap.

Pretty soon the children want to do the same.

"It works wonders for little guys who are shy," she says.

The class also studies animals scientifically, such as warm-blooded and cold-blooded animals, which are which and why.

"In the 12 years I have taught there has never been a time when they are not uniquely interested. All the kids love all animals," she says.

At Northridge school, Grade 7 students have a live hive of bees.

"We have had a lot of interesting experiences," says principal Mrs. Janet Mort.

When the bees and their hive — which adjoins a window — which can come and go — moved into the school, all the bees left, circled the school to get their directions straight — and came back in.

With glass on both sides of the hive, the children can watch the larva hatching which is "really fascinating."

At one time, a marauding group of bees attacked the hive and it had to be re-stocked.

Mrs. Mort says the hive has been successful in diminishing children's natural fear of bees,

Mrs. Ruth Specht of Specht's Aquarium and Pet Shop at Hillside Shopping Centre thinks it is a good idea to have pets in schools.

The children are taught to get along with animals right from the beginning. Some of the mothers and fathers come in and they don't know or like animals — some are afraid of them — snakes, rats, even the harmless iguana."

Gerbils and hamsters are the popular pets for children.

"We don't get too many strange requests — mostly for raccoons or skunks and boa constrictors which we don't carry anymore."

At Esquimalt high school, biology teacher Jack Nickolichuk has a room between two laboratories with mice, frogs, salamanders, alligator lizards and crayfish for a research project.

At the Grade 11 and 12 stage, animal studies are much more detailed than the elementary grades, where children are just beginning to learn about animals.

His classes have experimented in cross-breeding mice and is doing research on crayfish in conjunction with the federal fisheries station in Nanaimo.

He says crayfish, which may have potential for harvesting, have been located on the east coast of Vancouver Island but "no one seems to know about the west coast."

So his class is studying Muir Creek at Sooke, although they haven't found any yet.

Alvin the lizard attracts crowd.

UNLESS MOON WATCHERS got a lofty lookout early this morning they missed total eclipse which occurred as moon was setting on western horizon.

This shot was taken at 6:04 a.m. Total eclipse lasted from 6:35 until 7:52 locally but shadowed moon ducked below horizon at 7:41 a.m.

Rent Up Jan. 1, Unless . . .

Victoria tenants who receive rent increase notices today or Saturday will have to start paying those increases Jan. 1, unless otherwise instructed on the rent notice.

A spokesman in the B.C. Rentalsman office confirmed that the three-month written notice requirement for rent increases had been waived in certain instances, because the rent-increase legislation had been so long delayed.

As long as an increase notice is received on or before

Saturday, the date the legislation becomes effective, landlords can collect the increases Jan. 1.

But, the spokesman said, some tenants have been receiving notices of rent increases effective Feb. 1 or March 1, and those tenants need not pay the increases until those dates indicated on their written notice.

The spokesman said there had been much confusion over the new legislation, by both landlords and tenants.

Other provisions of the law include:

Rent increase notices given after Saturday, must fulfill the three-months written notice requirement.

No rent increases are allowed above the 10.6 per cent ceiling. Any tenant who receives an increase of more than the allowable level need only pay 10.6 per cent more than his previous rent. Any additional increases can be ignored.

No rent increase is allowed if there has been a previous increase within the past 12 months. That is, if a tenant had a rent increase on Feb. 1, 1974, there cannot be another one until Feb. 1, 1975.

Rent increases are tied to the apartment, not to any particular tenant. A rentalsman spokesman explained that the rent on any apartment can only be raised once every 12 months, but a new tenant in an apartment can receive a rent increase notice anytime after he moves in, as long as that increase is the only one in the past 12 months on that apartment.

Tenants may not be intimidated," the spokesman said. "Landlords will not be allowed to threaten them with termination of tenancy."

A possible waiver on the 10.6 increase ceiling may be given to operators of mobile home parks, he said.

Hearing a Breeze On Mace Project

Developer Jim Mace, who has had his fair share of appearances at stormy City Hall public hearings, couldn't have believed his luck Thursday.

His latest development proposal in the city, a remodelling job on the old B.C. Hydro substation at the corner of Bay and Government, passed unscathed through a public hearing without a single number of dissent from any quarter.

Mace plans to install two new floors and generally restore the building to provide 20,000 square feet of office space. The development will proceed under a land-use contract.

In other business, council approved the rezoning of property at Hillsdale and Doncaster, across from the Hillside shopping centre, for a 57-unit condominium to be built by Reeson and Pinch Homes Ltd.

"These owners can appeal," he said, "because the section dealing with mobile home parks was not proclaimed."

The mobile home park issue will be dealt with by the Royal Jubilee Review Commission.

No rent increase is allowed if there has been a previous increase within the past 12 months. That is, if a tenant had a rent increase on Feb. 1, 1974, there cannot be another one until Feb. 1, 1975.

"I think with the winter coming on it's going to be something of a problem, but we're trying it anyway," Crowther said.

The new board policy, an energy-saving measure, asks for temperature reductions "wherever possible and practical."

Northridge elementary school principal Janet Mort said she had complaints from chilly teachers and annoyed parents when the thermostats were turned down.

The problem with turning it down to 66, she said, is that when classroom close to the school's furnace are at 66, classrooms far away from it drop to around 63.

Northridge is trying to find some happy medium, she said.

Horace Dowson, principal of S. J. Willis junior secondary school, said 66 just isn't warm enough for students sitting in classrooms.

However, some other areas of the school now have reduced temperatures, he said.

Peter Boldt of Central junior secondary school said the thermostats are being gradually reduced, but as soon as students or parents start to complain the reductions will halt.

"Sixty-six is too cold for children," Frank Hobbs elementary school principal Walter Kiteley said Thursday.

"Of course you don't want it too warm or the kids will go to sleep on you," said Kiteley. "I think that 68 to 70 degrees is the sensible temperature and that's just where ours stays."

J. A. Crowther, View Royal elementary school principal, said he had complaints from pupils and teachers when the temperatures were reduced to 66.

thing of a problem, but we're trying it anyway," Crowther said.

When the bees and their hive — which adjoins a window so they can come and go — moved into the school, all the bees left, circled the school to get their directions straight — and came back in.

With glass on both sides of the hive, the children can watch the larva hatching which is "really fascinating."

At one time, a marauding group of bees attacked the hive and it had to be re-stocked.

Mrs. Mort says the hive has been successful in diminishing children's natural fear of bees.

Mrs. Ruth Specht of Specht's Aquarium and Pet Shop at Hillside Shopping Centre thinks it is a good idea to have pets in schools.

"The children are taught to get along with animals right from the beginning. Some of the mothers and fathers come in and they don't know or like animals — some are afraid of them — snakes, rats, even the harmless iguana."

Gerbils and hamsters are the popular pets for children.

"We don't get too many strange requests — mostly for raccoons or skunks and boa constrictors which we don't carry anymore."

At Esquimalt high school, biology teacher Jack Nickolichuk has a room between two laboratories with mice, frogs, salamanders, alligator lizards and crayfish for a research project.

At the Grade 11 and 12 stage, animal studies are much more detailed than the elementary grades, where children are just beginning to learn about animals.

His classes have experienced in cross-breeding mice and is doing research on crayfish in conjunction with the federal fisheries station in Nanaimo.

So his class is studying Muir Creek at Sooke, although they haven't found any yet.

UNLESS MOON WATCHERS got a lofty lookout early this morning they missed total eclipse which occurred as moon was setting on western horizon.

This shot was taken at 6:04 a.m. Total eclipse lasted from 6:35 until 7:52 locally but shadowed moon ducked below horizon at 7:41 a.m.

VGH CHIEF 'FLABBERGASTED' Tug-of-War for Baby Ward

Executive director Jim Fair told the Victoria General Hospital board Thursday night he was "flabbergasted" to learn, by accident, of plans to convert Royal Jubilee Hospital's Richmond Pavilion into the lone obstetrics unit in the region.

Fair, who also heard the price tag for such a development is $7 to 10 million, said he is concerned because the matter arises just as a new planning commission is to take over regional development of hospitals.

But Art Young, chairman of the regional hospital board, said today the drawings Fair is referring to are simply part of a study to see whether such a move is feasible.

The feasibility study has been undertaken by the advisory committee to the regional hospital board with the idea of providing the new planning commission background material and thus saving time in reaching decisions, said Young.

No decision on obstetrics and pediatrics units has been made and when it is, it will be made by the new planning commission, he added.

Both Victoria General and Royal Jubilee Hospital now operate obstetrics and pediatric units. But earlier this year, the regional hospital board approved a recommendation there be just a single unit for each service in the region.

There has been no decision on where the regional units will be located but many hospitals see both services as an essential part of any hospital.

Victoria General has introduced a new family-oriented maternity program and it has attracted a sharply increased number of newborn cases to the hospital.

The board was told Thursday night that the number of newborn cases going to Jubilee is falling.

Fair said he has received several letters from former patients expressing concern over the possibility of the hospital's program closing.

He said he would not have minded if those examining the question had approached both hospitals to conduct studies but he was upset to find out about the study at Jubilee "after the fact."

Board chairman Art Saunders told the board these were the sort of issues to be put to the commission at its first meeting.

Showdown Nearing For Maintenance Men

A head-on confrontation between the Greater Victoria school district and its 300 maintenance workers is a step nearer.

Union members will be asked at a meeting Dec. 8 to set a date for holding a strike vote, said Bob Cunningham, first vice-president of Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

He said members have already approved a no contract no work position. The current contract expires Dec. 31.

Cunningham said a meeting under mediation officer Clark Gilmour Thursday produced no new offer from the school board. The union has turned down a wage increase of 12 per cent.

The employees want wage parity with construction trades which would mean a janitor earning $4.42 an hour would go to $7.12 paid to building laborers and school electricians earning $3.99 would go to $9, he said.

He added that the union reduced its proposal by five per cent but when no new offer was made by the board, it returned to the original proposal.

Cunningham accused school board negotiator E. E. Pearlman of "delaying all of it, by the time he gets through the rest of the area and back to us. We can see no headway. Pearlman is prolonging any meaningful negotiations in the school district."

Pearlman replied that the charges are "completely without foundation" and were "not worthy of reply."

"The meetings are being conducted by Clark Gilmour. How he can say I'm delaying is beyond me," said Pearlman.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me if there is a place in Victoria where one could have a doll repaired. A.R.

A. There is no specific person at present repairing dolls

'66 Is Too Cold for Children'

A Greater Victoria school board decree this month that classroom temperatures be dropped to 66 degrees has met with a varying response from local schools.

Most schools are inching into the change, reducing temperatures in hallways and gyms but not in classrooms. A few, however, have made an across-the-board temperature reduction.

"Sixty-six is too cold for children to sit in desks," Frank Hobbs elementary school principal Walter Kitely said Thursday.

Children who come from homes heated to 70 degrees would find it too great a change, he said.

"Of course you don't want it too warm or the kids will go to sleep on you," said Kitely. "I think that 68 to 70 degrees is the sensible temperature and that's just where ours stays."

J. A. Crotcher, View Royal elementary school principal, said he had complaints from pupils and teachers when the temperatures were reduced to 66.

"I think with the winter coming on it's going to be something of a problem, but we're trying it anyway," Crotcher said.

The new board policy, an energy-saving measure, asks for temperature reductions "wherever possible and practical."

Northridge elementary school principal Janet Mort said she had complaints from chilly teachers and annoyed parents when the thermostats were turned down.

The problem with turning it down to 66, she said, is that when classroom close to the school's furnace are at 66, classrooms far away from it drop to around 63.

Northridge is trying to find some happy medium, she said.

Horace Dawson, principal of S. J. Willis junior secondary school, said 66 just isn't warm enough for students sitting in classrooms.

However, some other areas of the school now have reduced temperatures, he said.

Peter Boldt, of Central junior secondary school said the thermostats are being gradually reduced, but, as soon as students or parents start to complain the reductions will halt.

Rent Up Jan. 1, Unless . . .

Victoria tenants who receive rent increase notices today or Saturday will have to start paying those increases Jan. 1, unless otherwise instructed on the rent notice.

A spokesman in the B.C. Rentalsman office confirmed that the three-month written notice requirement for rent increases had been waived in certain instances, because the rent-increase legislation had been so long delayed.

As long as an increase notice is received on or before

Saturday, the date the legislation becomes effective, landlords can collect the increases Jan. 1.

But, the spokesman said, some tenants have been receiving notices of rent increases effective Feb. 1 or March 1, and those tenants need not pay the increases until those dates indicated on their written notice.

The spokesman said there had been much confusion over the new legislation, by both landlords and tenants.

Other provisions of the law include:

— Rent increases are tied to the apartment, not to any particular tenant. A rentalsman spokesman explained that the rent on any apartment can only be raised once every 12 months, but a new tenant in an apartment can receive a rent increase notice anytime after he moves in, as long as that increase is the only one in the past 12 months on that apartment.

— Tenants may not be intimidated, the spokesman said. "Landlords will not be allowed to threaten them with termination of tenancy."

A possible waiver on the 10.6 increase ceiling may be given to operators of mobile home parks, he said.

Hearing a Breeze On Mace Project

Developer Jim Mace, who had his fair share of appearances at stormy City Hall public hearings, couldn't have believed his luck Thursday.

His latest development proposal in the city, a remodelling job on the old B.C. Hydro substation at the corner of Bay and Government, passed unscathed through a public hearing without a single murmur of dissent from any quarter.

Mace plans to install two new floors and generally restore the building to provide 20,000 square feet of office space. The development will proceed under a land-use contract.

In other business, council approved the rezoning of property at Hillside and Doncaster, across from Hillside shopping centre, for a 57-unit condominium to be built by Reeson and Pinch Homes Ltd.
